DUKE LEAVES FOR AUSTRIA WITH BRIDE

Chats With Reporters At Wedding Breakfast

THEN ASKS FOR PRIVACY AND CONSIDERATION

Chateau Decande, June 3.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor left by motor car on the first stage of their honeymoon at three minutes past six this evening. It is understood they will board the train for Austria at the junction of La Roche Migennes (Yonne Department) at midnight.

The Duchess wore a going-away dress of a dark blue coat and skirt with a printed blue and white flowered blouse.

As the car left the Chateau, waiting crowds saw the Duke looking forward and waving happily. For about three miles along the road from Mont to Tours, mobile guards were stationed on each side at a distance of about 15 yards apart. Police cars and two despatch riders preceded the Duke and Duchess of Windsor's car, and a luggage van and two despatch riders followed.

Many of the villagers emerged from their homes to wave Godspeed to the Duke and Duchess.—Heuter.

Prince's Statement

Monts, June 3.

Mrs. Herman Rogers, host to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor before their marriage at the Chateau de Candé, read a statement from His Royal Highness, left for newspapermen after his departure with his bride.

"The Duchess and I wish to thank all those who so kindly sent presents and good wishes. I shall never forget their friendly messages. After the trying time we have been through we now look forward to a happy and useful private life and that measure of peace we hope will be granted us."

Receive Reporters

A flood of more than 2,000 telegrams came into the Chateau during the morning.

At 2.45 p.m. the Duke and Duchess received reporters en masse. "We are both exceedingly happy, and both delighted to receive you all here," said His Royal Highness.

The reporters were then presented singly, and smiling, the Duke regretted that the size of the Chateau did not permit of more guests.

At the wedding breakfast the Duke was laughingly happy and mixed with his guests and the privileged newspapermen present.

It is generally thought that the Duke and Duchess will live permanently in Central Europe.—United Press.

Good Wishes From Home

London, June 3.

The Duke of Windsor's wedding has evoked warm and widespread good wishes in many quarters, says the Evening Standard in an editorial to-day.

The leader continues to point out that a series of humiliations have been inflicted upon the Duke during recent weeks. One was the ruling whereby his family and friends were prevented from attending the wedding; another was the "churches" boycott. But there is little ill-will towards the Duke of Windsor in the nation as a whole and these actions, if the purpose was to alienate public sympathy from him, have defeated that purpose.

"We believe, continued the editorial, that our people will prefer to think with charity of his marriage, and remember past services to his country."

The News-Chronicle says there must travel across the Channel from all men and women of goodwill heartfelt good wishes for a long and happy married life to this man upon whom "the matchless blessing" of marriage, hitherto denied him, is now to be bestowed. May he find his decision endorsed by the years, it adds.—Reuter.

"IDYLL BLOSSOMS" AT CHATEAU CANDE

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are married, and speeding towards Austria in motor car and express, escorted by police guards. They hope for peace and quiet in an inconspicuous home and have appealed to the press of the world to leave them alone.

No Statement On Gold

Washington, June 3.

A Treasury spokesman said to-day that no statement on the gold situation is being prepared for issue to-day, and that no preparation for any statement to be issued at any time in the future was going on at present.—Reuter.

HUGE GOLD OFFERINGS IN LONDON

Equalisation Fund Makes Purchase

London, June 3.

The largest single day's offering in the history of the gold bullion market—a total of £12,065,000 was sold here to-day.

It is persistently reported that the authorities of three nations will issue a statement concerning the gold price, possibly next week. It is believed the price will be stabilised.

The source of the gold offerings is not disclosed, but it is believed to come from foreign holdings. It is noteworthy that to-day's sales brought offerings in official markets for the past few days to $42,340,000. It is believed Thursday's entire offering was purchased by the British Equalisation Fund. Another shipment of $10,000,000 of Russian gold arrived Wednesday.—United Press.

GUARDING NATION'S WEALTH

For Good Of People; Roosevelt Plan

Washington, June 3.

The establishment of several regional authorities to undertake a comprehensive programme for flood, drought and dust storm prevention and soil conservation has been recommended by President Roosevelt in a message to Congress.

The regional authorities will also administer hydro-electric projects undertaken as part of the Multiple Purpose Watershed Developments.

The President issued a warning that the water power resources of the nation must be protected from private monopoly and used for the benefit of the people.—Reuter.

Sharp-Shooters Keep Off Company Food Planes

PICKET LINES REMAIN IMPASSABLE

Youngstown, June 3.

Starvation threatens the employees of the Republic Steel Corporation who still remain at their posts in two of the company's factories near here, the Warren and Niles plants. Both are in Ohio.

Unless they decide to surrender and join the strike, the surrounding picket force will starve them into submission.

The picket lines are impassable, the only method of delivering food to the loyal workers has been by means of aeroplanes. But to-day low-lying clouds and rain prevented aeroplane deliveries.

NEW YORK SUSPENDS BRADDOCK

For Failure To Meet Max Schmeling

New York, June 3.

For failing to appear to weigh-in for to-night's scheduled fight against Max Schmeling, German heavy-weight and ex-world's champion, Jim Braddock was fined $1,000 and suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Braddock's world title was not taken from him, however.

The Commission also stated it would suspend any boxer who fights Braddock before the champion fulfils his engagement with Schmeling at Madison Square Gardens. This threat is obviously aimed at Joe Louis, the Detroit negro whom Schmeling, whipped, but who is slated to fight Braddock at Chicago on June 22.

Braddock's manager thought Louis would make a better drawing-card than Schmeling, declaring that anti-German feeling, especially in New York, would have made a fight with Schmeling—a financial failure.—Reuter.

FOUR POWERS PLAN SAFETY FOR NEUTRALS

Berlin, June 3.

It is officially confirmed that discussions will be held between Berlin, London, Paris and Rome with the object of reaching a common understanding on the question of effective guarantees for the safety of vessels participating in the International Control Scheme in Spanish waters.

It is understood that Germany is willing again to co-operate in the naval control and the deliberations of the Non-Intervention Committee, if such guarantees are forthcoming.—Reuter.

One Death In 42 Accidents In H.K. Week

Official Traffic Report Issued

One fatality in 42 accidents during the week ending May 29 is revealed in the official report made by the Hongkong Traffic Inspector and issued to-day.

Motor cars, lorries, buses, motor cycles, bicycles, trams and rickshaws were involved in these 42 accidents, which entailed injuries to 20 people, 11 of whom were admitted to hospital.

The one fatality was a Chinese, aged 22, who died as a result of injuries received whilst alighting from a moving tramcar.

Of the injured, nine were pedestrians, who were either walking or running across the road when knocked down.

Four tramcar passengers and one bus passenger were injured because they alighted from the vehicles as they were moving. Injuries were sustained by passengers who fell from moving motor lorries.

Of the 42 accidents, 15 were collisions between vehicles, twelve were collisions between vehicles and pedestrians and 15 were due to other causes.

57 VEHICLES INVOLVED

The report shows that 10 private motor cars were involved, and that the number of other vehicles which figures in these various accidents was as follows: motor lorries (14), public motor cars (3), motor buses (6), motor cycles (4), trams (5), bicycles (3) and rickshaws (4).

An analysis of how these 42 people were injured, serves, among other things, to show that pedestrians continue to be careless in their use of the road.

Six were injured because they ran across the road, and four of them received hospital treatment. Three were hurt because they walked carelessly. Another stupid habit which produced unfortunate results during that week, was the alighting from moving public vehicles. Seven people were injured, with five sent to hospital, because they ignored reasonable precautions.

Shark Joins Bathers At Night Picnic

While swimming in Tweed Bay during the week-end Miss Didsbury, of Messrs. Gilman and Company, had the exciting experience of being in the water in close proximity to a shark, she believes.

Miss Didsbury saw the typical triangular fin above the water a few yards from her and at the same time spectators on the beach shouted a warning.

The swimmer made for shore and the shark disappeared after cruising about for a few minutes.

It was a moonlight picnic and a number of people insisted later that it was undoubtedly a shark they saw.

Italy's Assurance

Rome, June 3.

It is authoritatively stated that Italy has given assurances to three prominent Ambassadors that she will not violate the Non-Intervention Convention or take further reprisals against the Spanish Government unless there is a repetition of incidents involving her.—United Press.

BOSTON DEFEATS PIRATES

Rain Washes Out All Other Fixtures

New York, June 3.

Pittsburgh lost some of its lead in the National League to-day when Boston held the Pirates scoreless.

Fette pitched for the Bruins, allowing seven hits, but keeping them well scattered. Berger homered for the Bruins on two occasions, and Boston's nine hits netted six runs.

The St. Louis-Brooklyn, Chicago-New York, and Cincinnati-Philadelphia games were cancelled, owing to rain.

In the American League the leading New York Yankees were trimmed by Cleveland, six to two, though each had eleven hits.

Chicago, playing at Boston, won handily, scoring eleven runs on ten hits, Plet and Bonura hitting homers. Boston scored four on six hits, Higgins contributing a circuit drive.

Washington beat Detroit, five to four, with nine hits to ten. The score was surprising in that Greenberg hit a home run for the Tigers, but on empty bases.

The Philadelphia-St. Louis game was called on account of rain.—Reuter.

Glamour Gowns

and they don't cost much, says Shop Critic

THIS is a glamorous, romantic season so far as evening dresses are concerned. I've not only been doing the round of the shops the last few weeks, but have also been seeing a good slice of night life—just to get a line on what women are really wearing, which isn't always quite the same thing as what the designers want them to wear.

Well, wherever you go you'll see that four-fifths of the women have chosen gaudy long coats, right to the ground, with waists, flared skirts and padded or squared shoulders; and as to gowns, whether they are of slipper satin, crisp tulle or lace, organza, crepe or chiffon, they have delicious skirts flaring out from the waist, with narrow self belts or wide and luxurious sashes in contrasting colour, and bodices sometimes very décolleté and sleeveless, and sometimes rather high and with puff sleeves.

At the Opera at Covent Garden the other night, which is the fashionable rendezvous just now, I saw dresses just like those sketched here for you by Angrave.

Only the glamour gowns at the opera were probably models costing £20 or £30 each, while those in the picture have been adapted from the best models by clever British fashion experts and cost little more than a tenth the price.

Cire lace makes the first gown, the waist encircled with a wide taffetas sash in contrasting colour. This costs only £3 10s.

I think I've mentioned before that there are gowns, not only for "debs," but for women of every age and figure; debutantes in this case merely means inexpensive, the sort of price that young girls can afford who are on a limited dress allowance, or earning a not very spectacular salary.

Short gloves of suede, in the same colour as the sash, are a very smart touch.

The front of the bodice is as interesting as the gauged back, for it is drawn up high, almost to the neck, with a running string, paper-bag fashion. This is another of the many glamour frocks, priced at £3 10.

AN evening two-piece is one of the most useful things possible for summer wear.

The one sketched on the centre figure and though it is made of a lovely crepey material you will notice that the skirt takes the same flared—even flowing—line seen in the cire-lace and chiffon gowns.

You can get this model in three different colour schemes, all on white grounds. I specially liked the one patterned in sage blue and navy, but it's all a matter of taste, and many people will, no doubt, prefer either the one with Coronation gold and black design or the one patterned in red and black.

One of the most attractive things about this suit is the little coat, lined up all through with taffetas of sage blue, Coronation gold, and red respectively, to go with the different patterns on the crepe.

Taffeta figures largely in everything this season. It makes the slips for lace, chiffon and tulle frocks, it makes sashes and it lines many evening coats.

I always think there's something swaggy and grand about the swish and rustle of taffeta slips and linings. This two-piece sounds and looks much more than four guineas' worth; but that actually is its price.

The sleeveless frock has a straight-across décolletage in front and a deep V open to the waist at the back; and a simple stitched self belt.

ON THE TENNIS COURT

By Jacqueline Howard

THIS YEAR'S serious tennis clothes are a cheering example of progression through trial and error.

You remember the very short skirts? Good on some people, usually on the short, slender, compact type of girl with nothing boyish about her. These skirts are back, but in a few instances only. They are cut very carefully to produce a smooth flowing line, and are zipped at the side.

You remember the short tight shorts? Bearable on the kind of girl who has length and breadth but no thickness, but dreadful on the rest. These are right out.

Next came the full shorts, usually worn with a skirt made in the same stuff. These could and can be excellent. They move beautifully; they give all the freedom that anyone can want, and they do not, if properly cut, demand any extreme of thinness or flatness.

The one snag with these is sometimes the human element. There are some people who remain neat in the most exacting circumstances, and apparently without taking any particular trouble about it. There are others who rumple and crease and come undone even when they are sitting quite still. For the essentially neat the separate shorts and skirt is good.

For the innate "rumpler" they are not so good.

This year's feeling in favour of "shorts dresses" does everybody well. The bodice part of them is trim. The shorts part is full, free-moving and becoming. There is no danger that one will part from the other.

Fabrics To Choose

All sorts of stuffs are used to make them in; sharkskin, which is very, very white and smooth and clean-looking at first, though not quite proven as yet over its reaction to wear and tear and washing; silk crepes and washing silks; plain and blue linens; flannel; pique and various cottons.

The most immediately attractive are the flannel ones, because the belatedness of any real warmth

White as always is de rigueur for the serious sportswoman on important occasions. Both pastel and brilliant linens, cottons and silks are for ordinary mortals if they prefer them. White or vivid cardigans should be ready to slip on between sets.

Most of the bodices button straight up the front, and most of them have small, neat, adaptable collars. Some of them have very short, roomy sleeves and some have none, but the sleeved ones are the most generally becoming.

The most attractive as well as the most practical of these button up to the base of the throat so that they can double the roles of cardigan and sweater when necessary. Choose them in finest cashmere or in thick knitting.

Tennis top coats are on the short side this year. Some of them are knee length, many end sooner, only a few are long; and although the traditional white blankety effect is still with us, there is a distinct bias towards pinks and blues, corn colour or mustard and greens. Only the longer ones are belted; a few are square and boxy, many have a casual swagger, and occasionally you see a cape instead of a coat.

Matching Jackets

Some sort of wool is the usual fabric for the top layer—hopsack or tweed, flannel, sometimes jersey; but there are also a few swaggers in the same linen as the shorts dress, and quite a lot of little matching jackets which are particularly good for people who refuse to play in sleeves but like to cover semi-burnt arms in between-whiffs.

Buckskin boots are pleasing a good many tennis fans. They are very comfortable to wear and they undoubtedly do give extra support to the ankles.

There is a wide choice of headgear. The new linen cap, slightly lockeyish in effect, is light, protective and becoming. The bandeau has returned, and is wide in front and narrow at the back; and there is a new vizor made in very thin straw instead of in linen or pique.

EX-GANGSTER GOES TO LONDON

Seeking Peace—And Job As Salesman

Police Tell Him "You'd Better"

London, May 6.
EX-CHICAGO gangster Thomas Lawrence Fitzpatrick, forty-five years old, stocky, weary, reached London last night from New York, where a week ago he was deported by the American authorities after finishing ten years' imprisonment in Auburn for a hold-up.

He arrived at Southampton earlier in the day on board the Hamburg-America liner Hansa.

He was met by two English detectives, who questioned him about his criminal career in Canada and the United States.

"What are you going to do over here?" they asked.

"I want a salesman's job," said Fitzpatrick. "You'd better," said they.

Fitzpatrick said to me on his arrival in London: "I want a job and I want him peace. I'm disgusted with myself the way they sent me over here. Why, it makes a fellow feel like doing something level for once."

KNOW THEM ALL

"Yes, I knew all the boys—like Bill Ryan, Al Capone, but I never killed a man, never saw one killed, though I packed a smoke-wagon (gun) and had to fire it sometimes. "All the time I was a salesman to the dinks (detectives). And I had the job too, could prove it to any flat (policeman) who questioned me."

Gangster Fitzpatrick told how he started off on his wild life. His father, he said, was an Irish bricklayer working in Yorkshire near Leeds. Now he is dead, and Gangster Fitzpatrick has not a single relative, does not know one man in the England he had not seen for thirty-five years.

"I ran away from home when I was seven," he said, "and they caught me and put me into an industrial school at Halifax, Yorks. Then I got sent to a religious home in Ottawa, Canada."

"When I was fourteen I ran away to Toronto. Later, I got into a jewellery store and got away with

£3,000 worth of sparkles (jewels). The fence gave me £1,000, but I got caught, and did five years in Kingston, Ontario. I came out in 1914, joined the Canadian Army, and got my discharge in 1920. I never fought during the war, but stayed in Canada."

"It was about '21 when I slipped across the border into the States, and though I got a job as a salesman—furniture, clothing and that—I started knocking round the pool rooms, fell in with gangs. I was three years with the Ryan Gang, and knocked up about £4,000 with them, but I never saved a dime; easy come, easy go it was."

"There was a helluva lot of squabbling about split-ups of the dough, so I cut loose and made for Rochester, New York State. That's where I did the hold-up. I went into a bootshop eight o'clock in the morning, stuck my gun (gun) in the assistant's stomach. I made him shell out from the safe, and got away with £300."

COCAINE

"I was all lit up with cocaine. I've taken cures for it since, got rid of the want of it. It's them young girls want cocaine there nowadays."

"The sentence for the hold-up was twenty years in Auburn Jail, but I came under the old Sage law, under which you get half your sentence remitted for good behaviour; that's why I'm out now."

"While I was in Auburn there were two big riots."

"Now I've lost all my money, about £100, fighting a case to let me get to Canada. But I lost, and I got sent here, where I don't know a soul. This is the first time I've been to London."

No Rush For Arms Loan

BECAUSE of excitement in other parts of the Stock Exchange, little attention was given to the dealings in the Government's new 2½ per cent. Defence Loan issued to the public at 99½. The loan started on the basis of ¼ discount.

A worse week for the flotation of the Government loan could not have been found since 1929 (writes a City correspondent). Even the big banks and other large institutional investors could not get up enthusiasm.

Of the £100,000,000 issued, probably £90,000,000 has had to be taken up by Government departments—the usual practice when an issue made to the public does not go well.

Stop Those Late Hours

—SAY SCHOOL DOCTORS

TWO doctors on the danger of "late nights" to children's physical and mental health:—

Dr. W. M. Ash, school medical officer for Derbyshire, says in his report that the greater number of the children whose health was below normal were found to go to bed very late. He adds:—

"It is lamentable that parents should, by condoning late hours for their children, injure their growing bodies. Malnutrition is very often associated with late hours."

Dr. Fox Linton, Medical Officer of Health for Scarborough, reports that most of the children in the "under-nourished" class are unfit because they do not get enough sleep.

Children of eight need eleven hours in bed, he says, and children of eleven need ten hours.

WOMAN EMBRACED BY RUNAWAY APE

Liverpool, May 6.

MICKEY, powerful 12-stone chimpanzee in the Liverpool Zoo, took it into his head to-day to have a look at the city.

He snapped his chain, got one of his compound, and . . . zoo visitors scattered.

Most of them rushed to the cafe, and locked the doors. Others dived into a circus tent.

Mr. Harold Bailey, 75-year-old ringmaster, tried to keep him out.

Mickey just slipped him, nipped him on the leg as he fell and went on his way.

He met Don Leo, lion-tamer. Don tried to stop him. Result, a badly torn shirt and scratches on the back—for Don.

Then Mickey took to the trees, and so over the wall, to the street.

First person he encountered was Mr. William Kelly, a coal dealer.

Mr. Kelly watched Mickey's approach with misgivings . . . then swung his shovel.

Mickey dodged, and next moment Mr. Kelly was rolling on the ground with a bite on his leg.

On went the ape, enjoying a full three hours of liberty by:

Entering a convalescent home, sitting at a desk in the office, opening drawers and leaving behind a litter of papers.

Playing with a crowd of children returning from school.

Climbing walls into gardens. Slapping the face of a laundry-maid, who put her head out of a window.

A police constable was eventually responsible for Mickey's "arrest."

"YOUR POLICEMEN—!"

The ape apparently took a fancy to the officer's uniform and plied him with a series of blows to his sleeping quarters—an iron-barred cage.

Mr. George Wardle, Mickey's keeper, said to-night: "He is so powerful that force is quite useless. We had to let him take his own line and try persuasion."

"If he really lost his temper, he could kill a man with a single blow."

Leap Off Plane At 300 m.p.h.

Paris, May 6.

RAYMOND DELMOTTE, speed ace and long-distance flier, made a parachute leap from his 750-h.p. airplane as it roared at nearly 300 miles an hour above the Istres military airport, near Marseilles, to-day on an attempt to right his world air-speed record.

He was slightly hurt in landing. His valuable plane, pilotless, raced drunkenly across the skies, crashed a mile away and was burned out.

For a week Delmotte had been waiting for favourable weather for the attempt. Only a fortnight ago his record of 279.75 m.p.h. for a 621-mile triangular course was beaten by the Italian, Furio Niele, with 294.75 m.p.h.

To-day Delmotte took off. At 8.30, just as he was flying into the marked course, watchers saw his machine begin to zig-zag, wildly, nose-dive steeply, then—with engine still racing—swoop into a vertical climb. At that moment Delmotte jumped.

M. Rissard, chief engineer of the Caudron factory, builder of the machine, said: "In leaving the air-field the machine travelled a little field the track, and a stone was thrown up which damaged an aileron."

"Delmotte, realising that the machine was not properly under control, tried to gain height. Finally the aileron gave way completely."

"Wear Hats If It Rains At My Funeral"

"I desire that there shall be no mourning, and no bought flowers, at my funeral, and that if the weather is bad the men shall wear their hats."—From the will, published recently, of Mrs. Cecil Clare Gough, of Bolton House, Uppingham, Rutland. Mrs. Gough left £77,000.

Johnnie Walker looks into the future

"If good whisky could be had by just making it," said Johnnie Walker, "there would be no need to look into its future. But it is only by maturing for long years in the wood that good whisky develops 'depth' and 'roundness.' Every year thousands and thousands of casks of whisky are laid down for Johnnie Walker—every year thousands and thousands of casks of fully matured whiskies are blended in the perfect harmony of Johnnie Walker. To-day, as always, you are right to ask for Johnnie Walker by name."

of Windsor after his departure for Austria with his bride.

"The Duke realizes that any atmosphere of secrecy is unsatisfactory," she said. "He will always be prepared to supply any news of importance concerning the Duchess and himself. At the same time, the Duke and Duchess, while fully understanding the difficulty, want this day to appeal to the press of the world to give them that measure of consideration and privacy which they feel is now their due."—United Press.

Vicar Is Questioned

Darlington, June 3.

An emergency meeting of the Parochial Council of St. Paul's Church to-day decided to ask the Rev. Anderson Jardine for an explanation as to why he did not consult the Church for authority to perform the religious ceremony at the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.—United Press.

Duke's Wedding

Monts, June 3.

The Duke of Windsor, formerly King Edward VIII of Great Britain, was married to Miss Wallis Warfield, formerly Mrs. Ernest Simpson, to-day at the Chateau de Candé, the home of their American host, Herman Rogers. There were two ceremonies, a civil one by the Mayor of Monts, Dr. Mercier, and an Anglican service by the Rev. Anderson Jardine.

The Duke and Duchess wore a black morning coat with a very dark yellow waistcoat, double collar, grey check tie and a white carnation in his buttonhole.

The civil ceremony began at 11.35 a.m. with Dr. Mercier reading the names of the parties and the Duke of Windsor's titles. The Mayor then called for the Duke and Mr. Herman Rogers for Miss Warfield—and read the three relevant articles of the Civil Code.

The Duke replied, "Out" in a firm voice to the Mayor's ritual question asking, "Do you consent to take Miss Wallis Warfield as your wife?" Miss Warfield's voice was unsteady as she replied to a similar question.

Moving Idyll

The Mayor in the course of addressing "Your Royal Highness and Duchess," said, "By one of those caprices in which fate delights, it is under a blue sky and amid the flowers of a garden in France that the most moving of idylls has blossomed."

The Mayor expressed very sincere wishes to the "Prince, who was the well-beloved sovereign of a friendly nation, and to her whom His Royal Highness had chosen from that noble country attached to us by the same precious bonds."

The civil ceremony concluded at 11.47.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor then proceeded to a music room which had been converted into a temporary chapel, where the Anglican religious service was conducted by Mr. Jardine.

CONCERT
IN AID OF CHARITYProminent Artists
Lend Services

To-morrow evening at 9 o'clock there will be a concert in aid of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at the Club de Recreio, Kowloon. It will consist mainly of operatic music, both vocal and instrumental. It has been organized by Prof. E. Gualdi, with the help of his Choral and several distinguished soloists.

Miss N. Hyndman, Mrs. S. Choy, Miss C. Pang, Miss Prue Lewis, Mr. G. D'Aquino and Mr. Harry Talbot have kindly agreed to give their services, and will render various numbers from "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore" and other operas.

The Choral Group, whose members have earned for themselves a unique reputation among local musical bodies, will include in their programme selections from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," Bellini's "Casta Diva," "Norma," and Verdi's "Foro del Destino," as well as folk songs in English and Italian.

The object for which the concert is being given needs no introduction to the people of Hongkong, the Society of St. Vincent de Paul is well known as the oldest of local charities, that does universal good among the poor. Tickets may be had at Anderson's and Tsang Fook Music Stores and at the doors of the Club de Recreio to-morrow night.

French Premier, M. Leon Blum, was presented to the bride and bridegroom.

At the conclusion of the religious ceremony, the organ played the Wedding March and the Duke and Duchess proceeded to the salon where they were toasted by the invited guests.

They then posed for several minutes while press photographers took pictures.

Half Hour Ceremonies

Monts, June 3.

The ceremony commenced at 11.35 a.m. in the presence of approximately 50 persons. Both ceremonies were completed by 12.03 p.m.

The civil ceremony was completed in 17 minutes. The Duke of Windsor was shy and did not kiss the bride at either ceremony. Despite his nervousness he did not finger his tie. His boyish, earnest voice was clear and firm.

Miss Warfield was a graceful and serene figure. At the religious ceremony they both knelt on a white silk cushion.

The principal guests were nine Britons and seven foreigners.—United Press.

THIS YOUNG MAN WANTS A WIFE.

HEALTH comes first on that table, and right so, because men rate it the most important quality. In nearly every questionnaire answered by men about their idea of an ideal wife they rank health before brains, beauty, or wealth.

Last year the Daily Express printed a questionnaire of this kind, which was answered by 10,000 men, whose replies I helped to analyse.

The ideal woman turned out to be a not very pretty, medium-sized, brunette. Physically she is very ordinary. Her clothes are quiet, her tastes simple.

She doesn't make up in public, cries when things go wrong, thinks men are marvellous. I think I'd like some one a bit more sensational.

But the things one ought to want are amiability and attractiveness. These are the two qualities which most men crave.

Only one man in sixteen says sex appeal is among the two most important things he looks for in a wife.

This means that I am one man in sixteen. I should marry the most beautiful girl I could find.

Beautiful people aren't usually dumb, you know. Havelock Ellis studied 1,030 British men and women of genius and found that mostly their biographies spoke of great physical beauty.

I REALLY ought to marry a university student, because marriages between university students are more successful than marriages generally, and I should like to think that the two years I spent making false teeth and dissecting flesh had been some use to me.

But I'm not sure that I'd like to marry a university student unless she wasn't like a university student. They're usually so well educated.

And they have a tough job getting married because they talk instead of listening, and because men have a strong tendency to marry women less intelligent than themselves. According to the Daily Express questionnaire only one man in nine wants his wife to be brainy.

ON the whole the best basis for a happy marriage is a common background of work or school. One study of 250 happy families showed that nearly three-fifths had this.

I don't think I should marry outside my own class. It's prohibited in many backward countries, and quite right.

I hope I don't marry without enough money to be as comfortable after marriage as I was before. Dr. Hamilton analysed 100 marriages and found that 54 per cent. of women whose husbands earned more than £1,000 a year were happy, while only 36 per cent. of those whose husbands earned less were as happy. The figures for men indicate that it doesn't make so much difference to them, but it would to me.

My wife wouldn't work. In two large districts in Stafford, with the same health conditions the women of one work and have three times as many stillbirths as the women of the other who don't.

She must have several brothers and sisters, because only children are difficult to get on with.

So I should prefer to marry someone beautiful, young, and well educated, who wanted to do housework and have children, someone medium-sized and middle class, with plenty of money of her own, who wanted to devote her life to my comfort and happiness.

Any suggestions will be politely received.

LETTER TO EDITOR

The Editor,
Hongkong Telegraph,
Sir,—With reference to the donations which you and the Kung Sheung Daily News are so public-spiritedly collecting for the families of the Chinese victims of the Dojima Maru disaster, may I ask whether the owners of the ill-fated launch have given any compensation to these families?

I ask this because I know of several persons who would like to contribute towards your fund but are waiting to know what compensation the owners will make to the Chinese families concerned before sending in their mite.

I think I am voicing the opinions of many that some compensation will be made to the relatives of the deceased Chinese as, I understand, being done in the case of the relatives of deceased Japanese.

If not, is not this terrible disaster a pointed apology for the early institution of Workmen's Compensation in Hongkong as it is in England and Japan?

UNBROKEN.

We understand the employers of the unfortunate crew of the Dojima Maru has assisted the widows and children. The Hongkong Japanese Community has also made a generous contribution towards their relief.—Ed.

THE CONFUCIAN
SOCIETY
SALE OF FLOWERS
TO-MORROW

In the 28 years of its history, the Hongkong Confucian Society, once maintained 30 free schools to give free education to several thousands of poor Chinese children in Hongkong. Recently, on account of financial stringency, the number of the schools was reduced to 17 and the number of students to approximately 2,000. Even so, the Society has to bear a yearly expense in the schools' upkeep of $30,000, which it has secured from public subscriptions as it possesses neither property nor endowment fund. Lately, on account of the general depression, subscriptions have dwindled.

The Committee of the Society is now, on behalf of the 2,000 poor Chinese children, appealing to the generosity of the public by a sale of flowers on Saturday, June 5, and it is hoped that the response will be liberal. The services of the students of 16 self-supported Chinese girls' schools have been obtained to sell flowers in the streets.

FRIDAY, JUNE 4, 1937.

WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, has made a splendid start in office. The first day he appeared in the House of Commons after the retirement of Mr. Stanley Baldwin, his generous praise for a colleague, who owed him much
in gratitude, won him esteem.
On Wednesday last he showed,
in his first major decision as Prime Minister, that he possessed no narrow willfulness of nature. He bowed to the complaints of the House and abandoned his carefully planned
National Defence Contribution
scheme, by which he sought to obtain £25,000,000 this year to assist Britain's vital rearmament
programme. He was making no falsely modest claim when he said: "My record does not include pig-headed obstinacy."

That is so. And yet he is a man who wrestled with tenacity
with the financial problems of
his term as Chancellor of the Exchequer — problems which would have smashed the confidence of many men. That his judgment was sound in this first
important decision, we cannot doubt; and that he had listened
with an open mind to wise counsel, he would not deny. The fact that his decision has released the market from the vice of uncertainty, removed the
shackles of doubt from business,
and allowed for the continued
normal expansion of industry,
is sufficient justification. However, he is not a man to move
blindly, even if he faced overwhelming opposition in the Commons. When he allowed
the graduated tax on growth of
profits to be swept into the discard he had a compensating
means of deriving income from industry in view. He as much as said so. And instead of the much-paraded tax of £15,000,000
he had been willing to obtain
from the original National Defence Contribution, he will now
get more like £25,000,000, from the same source but by different
means. That is good business, particularly when the revised
taxation promised is of the pain-
less variety... if any tax is that.
With the armament programme
the British Government has upon its shoulders, and the im-

This young man wants
a wifeI STUDIED the pictures
of Coronation debutantes in yesterday's Daily Express with particular interest.For as a member of the group
20-22 years old I am contemplating marriage; not with any particular enthusiasm or specific purpose, but because, judging
from the records, which I have been going into, I shall have a happier life if I marry early.It should be easy. There are 1,700,000 surplus women in this country, though more men are born than women. (Reason for this discrepancy is that more
than women die or go mad, and
are thus ineligible.)As a matter of fact the chances are that I shan't get married until I am nearly twenty-eight. For the average man now marries at twenty-
seven, the average girl at twenty-five, and it's getting
later every year.

"WOMEN especially have a better chance of making a successful marriage if they do it while they are young; they
get a wider choice of husbands.
If a woman waits until thirty
many of the eligible men in her
circle will be married already.
Maybe better never than late, in fact."

I wrote that recently and a girl
wrote to me next day:—
"What are you talking about?
Thirty is the ideal age for a woman to marry. It gives her
time to look around life, and she isn't too old for anything."All wrong, lady, all wrong for many reasons. Earlier marriages are usually happier, judging from the fact that fewer of them end in divorce. If you put it off you lose the ability to adapt yourself.People who marry late suffer
more from mental and nervous
disease. (Incidentally, spinsters
are twice as likely to go nuts as married women.)

PEOPLE who marry
early—live—longer,
though that's partly because it's
the healthiest people who do
marry early.

Young mothers' children are healthier. Agricultural labourers marry early because they soon reach their maximum earning capacity, and they're usually pretty healthy.And they live longer. What's more personally important than
how long they live is that they
are usually more successful,
which is worth considering for
the sake of support in one's old age.Well it seems to be a good thing to marry young. If you live in an area where there are a lot of openings for women in industry you probably will marry
young, but have fewer children.

NEXT thing is whom to marry. The popular
idea is that marriage is a lottery
because love is blind.

But the average man doesn't marry in a romantic fit. He knows what's going on when
his youthful experiments are replaced by what is unfortunately often known as "the real thing."He marries because he has decided to get married, maybe for economic reasons or because he is tired of eating out. Love

mense expenditure it faces in other directions—already expenditure for the year is nearing
the £120,000,000 mark, with revenues at £92,276,168—it is vital that the man who guides
the affairs of the nation should
be of that calm and far-seeing
type which is not ruffled in crises; nor by the cries of alarm
of his colleagues. This man, the Prime Minister, deserves, as he has won already, the confidence
of all.

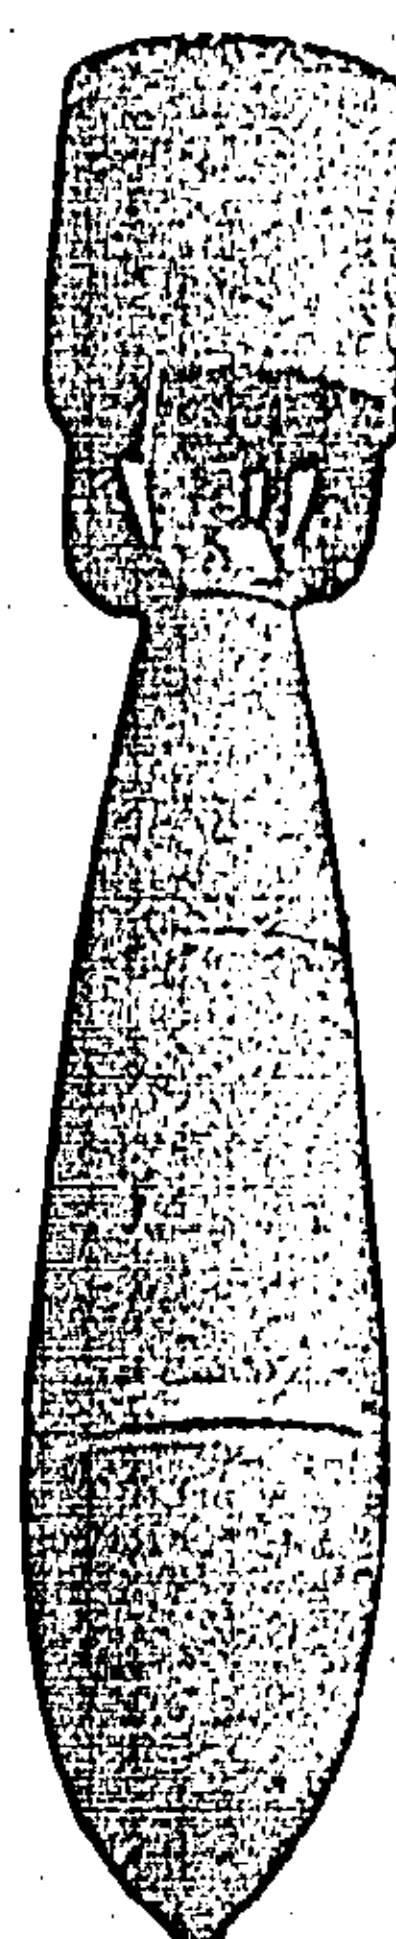

CONCLUDING article by Heinz Liepmann
on the secret preparations for Gas warfare
which are being made all over the world.DEATH
the SKIESTHE only question which
seriously agitates the champions of gas warfare is the best way of
delivering the goods.Wind direction is a very serious matter. Meteorological science has made considerable advances, so
that the general direction of air
currents can be predicted
for a considerable time
ahead. But local winds remain uncertain.Long past, indeed, are the days when gas attacks
were made by simply liberating the gas from fixed apparatus and allowing it
to stream down wind on
the enemy in the hope that
it would not be blown back
by a sudden change of wind.Various attempts have,
therefore, been made to
"wangle" the wind. The use of huge blowing instruments was at one time considered, in the days when poison gas was liberated
from fixed apparatus.Soon, however, came the turn of gas-shells fired
from heavy guns, with a range which made the return of the gas-cloud improbable even if the wind
should prove unfavourable.
Next came the vogue of gas-bombs from aircraft, or thrown as gas-grenades
from tanks.Plenty of gas-shells were fired during the later years
of the war of 1914-1918, but
the technique of dropping
gas-bombs has only been developed since then and is mainly reserved for the next war.Coming to fuller detail, I will use the terminology of General Staff officers, who
tell us that there are six different ways of "smoking-
out" the enemy, with poison gas.1. Discharge of compressed gases from fixed apparatus.
This was used at Ypres in the classical gas attack of April 22, 1915. Suitable
gases for this method are chlorine and phosgene; but
in view of the dangers of a shift of wind, it is unlikely to have much vogue during the next war.2. Discharge of gas-shells from mortars. This is suitable for phosgene and yellow cross;
but since mortars are short-range ordnance, the danger of an unfavourable shift in the wind is obvious.3. Firing of gas-shells from long-range heavy guns. Shells containing green
cross, yellow cross, or blue cross are suitable. Such a gas attack is almost independent of the wind, owing to the long range of the guns. The missiles will do their deadly work where they burst, miles away from the battery.4. Dropping of gas-bombs from aircraft. The same gases are available as those used for filling gas-shells.5. Raining of yellow cross or lewisite or some similar fluid from aircraft as a fluid not enclosed in bombs.6. Discharge of smoke or artificial clouds of some sort from aircraft with or without the admixture of poison gas.No doubt in the next war the second and third methods will still be used
from time to time, and in all countries
there are arsenals where gas-shells for discharge from mortars and heavy guns are being prepared and stored.On the whole, however, these implements will be reserved for special occasions. The decisive war of the future will be carried on with the aid of methods four and five, and it is with
the development of these that the gas
experts are chiefly busied.The sixth method cannot be said
to come within the domain of gas warfare. I mentioned it, however, be-blooms on that subconscious foundation.When he gets to this stage man sums up his range of acquaintance and goes for the best available. To help me in this process I have adopted the advice
of Paul Popenoe, an American

"Coming to fuller
detail..."

great, ranging from 100 to 150 feet, per second, so that the volumes of smoke or fog must be emitted in large quantities
and with great rapidity.
This can be managed, either by the use of containers with very large orifices,
through which the substance is simply poured out, or by the ejection
of the usually fluid smoke-producer (the chloro-sulphonic acid used in sky-writing) from the containers in which it is stored under pressure.
American chemists believe that poison gases can be stored in prime
condition for as long as ten years.
Especially interesting are the bombs to which reference was made at the thirteenth conference of the International Red Cross held at The Hague, in the
year 1928.

These are bombs with a retarded
detonator. They do not explode until many hours (four to thirty-six) after they strike.

Another remarkable fruit of the in-
ventiveness of the human spirit is the
poison gas aeroplane which has no engine on board, but is directed by wireless. This is indeed a two-edged weapon, for the enemy, by interfering
with the wireless direction, might turn
the plane to the right-about, and deliver the goods on the heads of the sender.

Hanalan, the eminent gas authority,
reports as follows concerning the "most modern" methods of chemical warfare:
The second stage of a neo-chemical attack will be the raining down of fluid
poisons stored, under pressure or not,
in containers carried by aircraft.

When pressure is wanted, the containers used by the Americans have a charge of highly compressed air or car-
bonic acid which will atomise the
poison gas as it emerges—or spray it, if that is required and a different pressure
is used.

In practical working, the height from which the spray or vapour is delivered
must be accurately adjusted to circumstances.
Experiments of this nature have been carried out in all countries. It has been found that mustard gas,
which is really a fluid from which an extremely heavy vapour may be prepared, can be most effectively used by atomising the fluid, this being allowed
down a small aperture in the container
while the aircraft that carries it is flying very fast.

Lewisite proves even more effective
when sprayed in this way. Since it is far more powerful than mustard gas,
three tiny drops often prove fatal.
Aircraft can easily scatter hundreds of tons of this deadly substance over
army camps or towns.

Every one of the larger countries has
thousands of aeroplanes which may readily be adapted to the showering
down of such murderous mines.

Gas is a mechanical instrument.
Soldiers must see to its use, and
soldiers cost a lot of money.
Our army commanders have been saluting themselves whether it is not possible to find soldiers of another
kind, who will carry on warfare un-
supervised, will multiply themselves
while engaged in their deadly work, so
that tremendous and increasing effects
can be secured at a trifling initial cost.

With that end in view, microbes,
pathogenic microbes, are to be pressed into the service of man-
for man's destruction.

Correspondence between the German Reichswehr Ministry and
a leading German aviation society
has shown that experts proposed
to use a harmless microbe as the subject of an experiment in order
to show how micro-organisms rained down from aircraft would
react to meteorological, bacterio-
logical and chemical conditions.

The unprecedented character of
these experiments, entirely new in
the history of civilised mankind,

was that they were carried out, by Germans,
not in the German capital, but in London and in Paris. They were made by agents in the vicinity of the ventilating shafts of the London
tube railways and of the

Paris Metro. One letter in the
correspondence gives detailed accounts of the experiments in Paris.

It was assumed that, in the event
of a German air-raid, a large proportion of the population of Paris
would take refuge in the Metro.
This underground railway has
been, to some extent, designed to resist an enemy air-attack, and the inlet shafts by which it is ventilated have been so constructed
that the air can be kept reasonably pure.

The agents stationed themselves
close to the inlets of these shafts, and liberated certain quantities of the aerobically micro-organisms, which,
of course, were promptly sucked into the ventilators.

Down below, on the platforms, were
other agents with complicated apparatus able to register how many of the liberated organisms found their way
into the underground air.

There is a similar report concerning
the experiments in London.

ANGLER'S
WIFE

MUCH sympathy goes to the
golf widow and the bridge
widower but no one seems to consider the lot of the angler's
wife.

While the world and his wife
are enjoying a civilised holiday
among civilised people, the angler and his wife make tracks
for some unfrequented "back o'
beyond" where there is alleged
to be excellent fishing, but apparently little else.

The wife does not have to accompany the fisher, but there is
a sense of injury and a strained
feeling in the air should she suggest going off on her own. Her husband likes her to be there in
the evenings when he is too
tired to do anything but sit
and smoke. Occasionally he will recount the fine rises he had
throughout the day, and tell of
the salmon he almost landed but didn't.

The angler's patience is colossal. The man who cannot wait
ten minutes while his wife
dashes into a store in town to buy a hat can stand for hours
on the river's bank—often with no success. Time is nothing to the angler.

If his wife should accompany him to the river, she hardly dare move an eyelid for fear she
should frighten away the fish.
Woe betide her if she should happen to speak at the psychological moment when a fish is about to rise!

Fortunately, however, even a
keen fisher must eat, and the interval for a picnic lunch or tea
relieves the situation somewhat.
The angler's wife, who always
tries to make a virtue of necessity, begins to think that even
the "back o' beyond" has its points.

The village inn, to which they return each evening pleasantly
tired, may not be very modern.
The water may be more often
cold than hot, the mattresses
may be somewhat hard and unyielding, but at least there is sure to be a good fire and a decent meal.

The local store may be limited
in its resources, its window

De Valera Bans Divorce In New 'Republic'

MOTHERS TO BE KEPT AT HOME

Dublin, May 6.

MR. DE VALERA to-day issued the text of a new Constitution changing the Free State into a phantom Irish Republic called "Eire," of which he will no doubt be first President—with almost dictatorial powers.

Without once mentioning the word, he proposes to declare a republic de jure for all Ireland, de facto for the present Free State. There is no reference to King or Crown.

Pending what the Constitution calls "the re-integration of the national territory" laws enacted by the new Parliament will not apply to Northern Ireland.

7-YEAR OFFICE

The "President of Eire"—new ceremonial head of the State—will be elected for seven years by secret ballot of the people, and will take precedence over all other persons. He will not be a member of Senate or Dail. His Prime Minister, nominated by the Dail, will be called Taoiseach—"the Leader"—and will submit his list of Ministers for the President's approval. The President cannot leave the country except by consent of his Government.

No divorce will be granted in the new State, and no person whose marriage has been dissolved in another State shall marry in Eire during the lifetime of the other party.

The new Constitution says that by her life within the home woman gives to the State a support without which the common good cannot be achieved.

The State will therefore endeavour to ensure that mothers will not be obliged by economic necessity to engage in labour to the neglect of their duties in the home.

The new Constitution comes into operation 181 days after its approval by a majority of the Irish people at a plebiscite on a date to be fixed. A general election for the new Dail will be held on the same day.

BLAMED HER FALSE TEETH THOUGHT THEY SPOILT LOOKS

AN assistant headmaster's wife who complained that her looks had been spoiled by false teeth was found hanged.

At the inquest at Chelmsford (Essex) the jury found that Mrs. Agnes Mary Stannard, aged 58, committed suicide while of unsound mind.

The husband, who is assistant headmaster of the Essex Home School for Boys, said that after she had all her teeth out in February, 1936, his wife was fitted with dentures but could not bear them.

34 Ships In Four Months

ORDERS to the value of £18,000,000 were secured by Clyde shipbuilders during April—the highest figure for any month since the end of the war.

In addition to about 40 warships, firms now have on their order books about 140 ships, estimated at 500,000 tons. Since the year began 34 vessels have been floated of 113,228 tons; more than the aggregate in the year 1933.

She had another set made, but said they spoiled the look of her face. The Coroner (Mr. L. Beccle): Did that matter very much at her age?

Mr. Stannard: It was a great shock to her. She could not sleep at night and used to wake me up and talk about her teeth.

"I had a third set made for her and they still did not suit her. I could not please her at all."

AFTER VISITING GRAVE

His wife was found hanged in the school gymnasium after she had been with him to see the grave of their child.

The coroner, recording his verdict, said: "It is a curious story. This woman had a happy home, and seemed to have nothing to worry about except that her teeth gave her trouble."

"There is no reflection on the dentist who treated her. A great many people cannot get use to dentures, and it makes them unhappy."

WANTS TO BE IN EMPIRE

The Daily Express Political Correspondent writes: The new Constitution of the Irish Free State goes further than expected, but it is understood Mr. de Valera's intention is to allow the Free State to remain part of the British Empire.

He has often told British Ministers this, adding that it must be regarded as an independent State. Precisely how this is to be arranged Whitehall has not yet been told, and I understand inquiries are being made of him.

It is believed the Free State wants our Navy and Army to defend it in return for our being allowed to establish naval and military bases on the west coast of Ireland.

It is likely that Ireland's future will come before the Imperial Conference in London a few days after the Coronation, and that a new attempt will be made there to settle the differences between Great Britain and Ireland which originated in the withholding by the Free State of land annuities.

HITLER'S MYSTERY FOE—Known only as "Herr Schmidt," here is the masked person who announced in New York that he was head of the underground German seamen's union that is fighting Chancellor Hitler of Germany. He said the union was part of the Liberty Party, with headquarters in Cologne. He showed fake cigarettes containing printed propaganda.

Morrison's 40-Day Tour Of U.S.A. WORDS

WHAT 20,000-MILE TRIP TAUGHT HIM

MR. HERBERT MORRISON dashed into London recently after a 20,000-mile tour which began in London 40 days ago, took him right across the U.S.A., and ended, where it began, in County Hall.

"Americans are fond of us fundamentally," he said last night, "but they cannot follow the foreign policy of the British Government."

"They are determined not to get mixed up in a European muddle, and they will not enter into a fixed alliance with any European country."

"But they are prepared to help a Europe that is prepared to help itself."

"I am certain that if Europe under British leadership, or at any rate, if the peaceful and democratic European Powers were themselves prepared to co-operate, then the United States would be prepared to co-operate also."

In the course of his American tour Mr. Herbert Morrison had a 90-minute interview with President Roosevelt.

"A GREAT CHAP"

The interview was confidential and Mr. Morrison preferred not to discuss it at length, but it seems to have reassured him that the United States Government is really anxious for a world settlement.

"The President," said Mr. Morrison, "is a great chap. He has a profound knowledge of what is going on on this side of the Atlantic. On his own side he has introduced considerable reforms, including recognition of the Trade Union movement."

When the London's leader arrived in America he was naturally assailed with inquiries about London's government. He was also confronted with the difficulty of running a similar type of government in some American cities.

"I hinted to an American one Friday," he said, "that I should like to cut down the administration costs in a certain American city, and I thought I could if my party and I were in control."

"Well," came the reply, "if you started to-day you would have a bullet through your head by Monday!"

Mr. Morrison has a poor idea of American housing progress. "On most Labour questions," he

FIVE WOMEN CLAIM PENSION AFTER DEATH OF "PROPHET"

Whakatane, N.Z. To be asked for five widow's pension forms, and to be told that they were sought on behalf of the relatives of only one man was the extraordinary experience of Mr. R. Wright, clerk of the Court at Whakatane.

The request was made to Mr. Wright by a Maori from Matahi, in the Urewera Country, and the clerk's first thought was that there had been a series of unreported fatalities in this remote settlement, but the Maori assured him that nothing was wrong.

"Well," said Mr. Wright, "why the five forms?" "Oh," answered the Maori, "they are for the Prophet's widows."

The Maori was extremely surprised when Mr. Wright explained that no matter how many brides the late prophet Rua Kenana had led to his wife, there was little chance of the whole being recognised by the law, which makes no allowance for such cases and holds that, whether prophet or lay man, one man can only lawfully be married to one woman at a time.

The Maori left with one form, assuring Mr. Wright that he would pick out the widow with the most children and make an application on his behalf.

TEN MOST OVER-WORKED TEN MOST BEAUTIFUL

THE ten "most overworked words in the United States" have been listed by Mr. Wilfred J. Funk, dictionary maker, editor and publisher.

His list gives the words and the class of people most responsible for "overworking" them. It reads:

1. Okay.—Children and shop-girls.
2. Terrific.—All persons exposed to Hollywood for more than 24 hours.
3. Lousy.—Same as 2.
4. Contact.—Advertising workers.
5. Definitely.—Society.
6. Gal.—Brooklynites.
7. Racket.—Tradesmen.
8. Swell.—Interior decorators.
9. Impact.—Columnists and commentators.
10. Honey.—Stockbrokers.

Society's use of "definitely" Mr. Funk finds "amusing. He attributes it to "British-mindedness" induced by the Jubilee and the Coronation.

"The joke is they think it's an aristocratic English word, whereas the fact is that the English charwoman or dustman can hardly bear to leave 'definitely' out of a sentence," he declared.

Mr. Funk also selected the ten most beautiful words in the language. The chosen words were:

Dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring, tranquil, mist, luminous, chimed, golden and melody.

Horse Sees Elephants, Drops Dead

Too woomba. WHEN elephants were being taken from the railway station to a circus tent a horse dropped dead with fright in the street.

The elephants were walking along the street, five in a row, when the horse saw them. The horse looked at the moving mass of flesh, made a few steps forward, shivered, collapsed and died.

K. C. C.-RECERIO STRONGEST TEAMS IN "C" DIV.

Championship Almost Certain To Rest Between Them

Both Show Good Form In First Matches Of Season

SEVERAL SURPRISES

(By "Veritas")

The fact that K.C.C. were not entirely at full strength (though they had the benefit of Donald Anderson's services, who had to be brought in at the last minute) and yet beat Radio Sports Club by 7½ sets to 1½ in yesterday's "C" Division tennis league match is fairly indicative of the strength of this team.

K.C.C. were without G. A. White, their captain and A. G. Philipps, but the side which turned out were full measure for the rather weak opposition.

W. M. Gittins and R. S. Capell made a particularly formidable combination, winning two sets to love and the third, against Radio's strongest couple, to three. Gittins played fine tennis, volleying strongly and with unerring accuracy. Capell lent full support, and they never looked like losing.

D. J. N. Anderson and R. E. Lee had one peculiar set. Opposed to Dave Leonard and Sherriff, they were trailing 1-5 when they started a recovery which took them to a lead of 6-5. They held a set point against service, but just failed to clinch it, and the Radio pair finally won the game to halve the set.

Anderson's forecourt play was efficient and Lee was outstanding for his consistent return of "killed" especially against Gurbachan Singh and Karnal Singh, who found their best shots from the net sent back again and again.

Freeman and Soltan made a very businesslike third string. Freeman required a few games to get into his stride, but after that he was constantly effecting telling interceptions, his anticipation being exceptionally good. Soltan was delightful confident from the baseline and utilised a viciously chopped backhand to the best advantage.

It did seem that the Radio, on this display anyhow, had aspired a little too high in seeking a place among "C" Division teams. But perhaps too much notice should not be taken of yesterday's display. Being the first game of the season there is reason to expect the Radio players to show improvement in their following matches.

Nevertheless, with the exception of Leonard and Sherriff, it cannot be said that the team looked quite up to "C" Division standard. Their chief fault was inconsistency, and one noticed a lack of stroke equipment which prevented winning shots being made after openings had been created.

For the most part the losers relied on defensive tactics, but when called upon to attack they were unable to volley or smash strongly enough.

SOME SURPRISES

Yesterday's matches were certainly not without their surprises. It was not totally unexpected to find the Army beat Chinese Recreation Club first string, though prior to the match the odds were slightly in favour of the Chinese. It was a very good performance on the part of the soldiers.

More surprising, perhaps, was the success of Kowloon Tong against C.R.C. (2) and the defeat administered to the Indian Recreation Club by the promoted Craigengower.

Kowloon Tong's strength lay in W. W. and W. K. Ma, who won three sets without being unduly extended. The other pairs snatched a set and a half each which indicates that Kowloon Tong are not completely dependent on one couple. Anyway it was a very good win, indeed.

There was considerable inconsistency attached to the I.R.C.'s display

K.C.C. Tennis

Howard Defeats Broadbridge THREE MATCHES YESTERDAY
Three matches were played in the K.C.C. tennis tournament yesterday. P. A. Broadbridge scored a neat win over J. W. Howard, the Craigengower league player in the handicap singles, winning in straight sets 6-1, 6-4.
Broadbridge was forceful and steady at the correct periods, whereas Howard did not have full control over his shots and was led into blunders.
Broadbridge is playing very good tennis at the present time, his progress in the junior championship being complimentary to his current form.
B. Monks and Rev. C.B.R. Sargent failed to negotiate their stiff second round hurdle in the men's handicap doubles, losing to W. C. Hung and F. Grose, 6-4, 6-2.
Monks and Sargent played from a receive 15 mark and the winners were owing 30.
Hung was formidable overhead and on the volley, cleverly cutting off the somewhat careful returns of the opposition and scoring with decisive shots down the middle of the court. Grose was nicely steady, and between the two, they were able to carry the war successfully into the opposition camp. Sargent again showed promising form and Monks was notable for some splendid recoveries.
A. W. Ramsey and Miss V. Bradbury (see 2/6) survived first round match in the mixed doubles handicap, beating W. Crabb and Mrs. Sweeney (see 2/6) 6-3, 6-4.
One of the most interesting features of the match was the fine display by Mrs. Sweeney, who willingly engaged the opposition in driving duels and by no means came off second best. Her steadiness off the ground was exemplary, though one could discern a dislike for deep shots to her backhand wing.
The match produced some entertaining rallies, all four players making good shots. Ramsey's ability in retrieving finally turned the game in favour of him and his partner.

Gainsborough Lass Is Doubtful Starter

London, June 3.
Alterations were announced to-day in the probable starters and jockeys for the Oaks. The following changes were made:
Gordon Richards rides Sculpture, Jones has been given Sundart, Lowrey will ride Rockfall.
Gainsborough Lass will not run unless there is heavy overnight rain. —Reuter.

ALICE MARBLE SECRET

Her Daring Shorts

Southampton, May 11.
Wearing a blue straw pill-box hat at a jaunty angle in keeping with her reputation as the most fashionable of tennis stars, Miss Alice Marble, United States woman champion, arrived here to-night in the Cunard-White Star liner Berengaria for her first Wimbledon.

Miss Marble—tall, slim, 24-years-old Californian blonde—is renowned for the daring brevity of her shorts, but she would not say whether she would continue to play in them here. But she still has her bright scarlet finger-nails.

She should have played at Wimbledon three years ago, but collapsed on the court in an earlier Paris tournament and had to retire from the game through illness.

DRAMATIC RETURN

Last September she made a dramatic return by beating Miss Helen Jacobs at Forest Hills, winning the singles and doubles championships.
"I am now as fit and well as ever I was," she said, "and have completely recovered."
"I cannot tell you how much I am looking forward to Wimbledon. There I shall be partnered by Miss Catherine Windrop, of Boston, in the women's doubles, and probably by J. D. Budge, United States No. 1 man player, in the mixed."

NO MORE FLAT RACING UNTIL SEPT. 25

FIRST HALF OF SEASON CLOSES UNDER MISERABLE CONDITIONS

A HEAVY TRACK CAUSES SOME REVERSES

The final of a series of six Extra Race Meetings under the auspices of the Hongkong Jockey Club for the first half season was staged last Saturday at the Happy Valley and we shall have no more flat racing until September 25.

It was indeed a great pity that, after a sequence of 12 days of racing on fast going with glorious sunshine, the last meeting should be held in such deplorable weather. Although there were several heavy down pours, it did not in any way dampen the enthusiasm of punters, but the rain was in certain measure responsible for the poor attendance of ladies.

The opening event (Shing Mun Handicap for "A" class China ponies) was run in good time, but the state of the going became worse as the meeting progressed and the track was badly cut up towards the end. Luckily there was no serious accident owing to the fact that all the Australian and China ponies wore aluminium plates instead of heavier shoes. Running without any clogs, Mr. R. M. Wood had his hands full in preventing Honeycomb Eve from falling when the combination finished over a long behind the fourth pony in the Shing Mun Handicap. Dunbar's Discovery Bay slipped just in front of the Stewards' stand in the Cabramatta Handicap and unseated her jockey Mr. C. L. Gregory. This young novice was not hurt in the least, for Mr. Gregory rode a winner on Declassed later in the afternoon and had the pleasure in piloting Daylight Eve to a third place in the main event, the Lantau Handicap.

MANY REVERSES
The slippery condition of the grass track was mainly responsible, for several reversals of forms, the great veteran racing boy (Mr. S. C. Liang) paying the biggest dividend $66.00 for a win in the first selected race of the daily double event. Following this, Perfect Day with the same jockey returned the second biggest dividend $48.70 while the mounted section pony, Ebony Idol, with Mr. W. E. Greive up handed out $69.00 for a place in the last race.

The failure of punters in their selections of Racing Boy for their first leg added interest to the second forecast and there were only seven successful nominators in the daily double out of a total of 42 tickets sold on Racing Boy. The combination paid $76.40 this being the third best of this season.
Of the jockeys, Mr. "Duffy" Davis was in good form to ride three winners, but it was undoubtedly a bad luck that his chance of a "hat trick" was wrecked in the third event when Pontiac Bay had to kawl to the mud-larking Bright View ably ridden by Mr. "Pinkie" Botelho. It was a coincidence that Mr. S. C. Liang won two consecutive races, the fifth and sixth, while Mr. H. C. Pih captured the seventh and eighth events. It will be seen that Messrs. Davis, Lin, and Pih each scored a double and it may interest one to know that a $5 double on Mr. Liang's mount would have brought in over $500. The champion jockey Mr. D. Black did not have a winning mount.

Described By Capt. Foster

The sale of the special $1 cash sweep conducted by the Hongkong Jockey Club on the Lantau Handicap amounted to about 60,000 chances and ticket No. 23,050 which drew the winner Laughing Girl won $20,042.88 for the first prize. Zero drawn by ticket No. 42,839 received $8,183.68 for second prize while Daylight Eve drawn by ticket No. 26,457 was worth $4,091.84.

Racing on the whole was not devoid of excellences, for there were several good fields and a few close finishes.

MR. DAVIS RIDES SMART RACE To Win First Event

Mr. Davis opened his account in the first event when he piloted Oak Bay to victory in the Shing Mun Handicap. Credit must be given to the jockey who, realising the sudden state of the track, preferred to ride from the back and coming into the straight Oak Bay had no difficulty in passing the top-weight Soldier of Britain who led from the start. However it was amazing to find that King's Justice, a "B" class pony, had more tickets than Soldier of Britain in the place betting with the result that "Tommy Atkins" paid $10.30 for coming in second.

ABLE AMAZON REFUSES

Centre Court Scores A Success

No reason was offered for Able Amazon's non-acceptance in Victoria Park Handicap, which drew five starters. The field was well represented by the off-springs of Double Court by Centre Court, Derby Day and Double Finesse, the first named cob winning quite comfortably. Centre Court proved that she was a better animal over a mile run and the mare was not at any point of the race in danger of defeat. Bar Tor went out with ten pounds over the allotment and it would interest one to know why advantage was not taken of the low impost.

Bright View Upsets The Punters

There was a heavy shower when the weighing out started for the West River Handicap confined to "C" class raters over a course from the two mile post, once round and in, and in spite of the rain Bright View, Upset by the writer, was not fancied in the pari-mutuels. Preference was given to King's Jubilee ridden by Mr. S. C. Liang this being last minute favourite. It will be recalled that the 1934 Annual Race Meeting was run on a terrible soft going and Bright View finished second to Hydroplane, the winner of the Hongkong Derby. With everything in his favour, Mr. "Pinkie" Botelho took Bright View out at the fall of the white flag and maintained the lead until the wire was crossed over by four lengths in front of Pontiac Bay who in turn defeated King's Jubilee by a length. A note should be kept that Bright View is a first class pony on heavy course.

Mr. S. C. Liang followed up his success on the Australian pony, Perfect Day, in the Walled Handicap over a mile beating the hot favourite Snowy River by half-a-length. The latter had the race well in hand up to the last hundred yards from the finishing line but Perfect Day, hard pressed by the jockey, responded gamely to secure the verdict. Honey seemed to me ran very well up to the last quarter post, but petered out in the home run to finish a good fifth behind Australian Boy. Racing Heart, the second favourite, was never in the picture and gave a very disappointing display.

YANGTSZE HANDICAP THRILLS

Kum Shan Is Pipped On Post

Sir Vandeleur Grayburn's Ouse was the only absentee for the Yangtsze Handicap confined to China ponies, bona fide griffins of this season, the event being the second leg of the daily double. The absence of Ouse came as a surprise, for this black stallion was considered to have an even chance and many would have backed it if he had lined up. In the daily double betting there were only 42 tickets (first leg) on Racing Boy out of a total of 917 sold and these successful punters made Vira the favourite with 15 backers.

Nobody could complain about the start which was a compliment to Mr. A. H. Potts. As usual Mr. Proulx on Kum Shan got away with the greatest alacrity and maintained the lead almost to the end when he was pipped by Centre Forward ably piloted by Mr. H. C. Pih. It may be of interest to know that the first quarter was galloped in 29 seconds while the second stanza was covered in 30½ seconds. I said that Centre Forward might be a danger, but it must be admitted that the success was in a measure due to the jockeyship of Mr. H. C. Pih.

It was a thrilling race, for after passing the distance post there were Centre Forward, Kum Shan, Vira and King's Coronation in a line fighting the issue out. The first named secured the verdict by a neck while Kum Shan beat Vira by half-a-length. King's Coronation was the second hot favourite, the services of Mr. "Peanut" Marshall instead of Mr. D. Black, went better than I expected and had the mare kept a straight course, Mrs. Pearce would have had the honour of leading in the pony first. King's Coronation was going well but she started to run cut the severe putting the jockey off balance he had to ease up to straighten his seat. However, better luck next time. The combination Racing Boy/Centre Forward paid $570.40.

11 STARTERS IN CABRAMATTA HANDICAP

All the entries accepted the Cabramatta Handicap for Australian cobs of this season over a mile and it was certainly a fine sight to see eleven runners facing the start. Mr. Macgregor's Strathcarrick with Mr. Black up carried all the money while A Great Time owned by Mr. Li Pochun made the second hot favourite. These two ponies gave very disappointing displays and they finished among the "Also Rans." I am of the opinion that the soft going was not to their liking.

The pack had a good send off by Mr. Potts and Lianarmon jumped to the front followed by Strathcarrick, Roofly, Dick Turpin, twilight Star. (Continued on Page 9.)

and others. As the steeds passed the Stewards' stand, Discovery Bay slipped and unseated her jockey. Luckily Mr. Gregory was riding in the rear of the field and he got up as if nothing had happened. However the visibility, owing to the heavy rain, was very poor when the runners were rounding the bend, but it appeared, though I might be wrong, that Dick Turpin was well in the front. The manner in which Dick Turpin won this race by six lengths showed that he had no objection to a heavy course. Twilight Star, who was second, paid well $13.60 for a place, but Rooley after a sequence of seven unplaced outings finished a good third.

The best race was seen in the Peiho Handicap for "D" class China ponies over six furlongs and incidentally this was the first leg of the daily double event. Plain View was a strong fancy, but the nag lost the race in the last few strides to Racing Boy by a short head.

At the release of the barrier, Araxy made the running followed by Shipmaster. It could be seen from the start that the heavy course was not welcomed by these two chargers for Messrs. Proulx and Black had great difficulty in getting the ponies to move. Long before entering the stretch Araxy and Shipmaster threw in their sponge. At the distance post National Anthem was leading but for a short while only. He could not save of the spirited challenge by Racing Boy and Plain View. The former just managed to clinch the issue and in view of the fact that Racing Boy was carrying top-weight, it was certainly a grand performance, the jockey Mr. S. C. Liang, riding a hard race. The great veteran paid $96.80 for a win this being the biggest of the meeting.

BIG RACE PRODUCES A GRIM BATTLE

The great race of the Meeting, the Lantao Handicap, was run under heavy showers and the jockeys must have had an awful time. My selection Zero finished second and had the novice Mr. S. L. Yuen ridden the mare from the back instead of rushing up the incline in 28½ seconds. Laughing Girl wouldn't have won by two lengths. There was a grim battle between Daylight Eve, Valorous and Gold Coin for the minor position in the frame and the decision went to Daylight Eve by a short head. There were 12 starters out of 15 entries and when the riders returned to the jockey's room, some of them had their

M.C.C. MISS A CHANCE

CORONATION MENU "AS BEFORE"

(By Sidney Rogerson)

The M.C.C. have missed a great opportunity. Coronation year presented a wonderful chance to attempt to infuse into cricket some of the festive spirit which is evident elsewhere. It was an opportunity to try something new, to restore to English cricket some of its old good humour and its old good nature.

But the opportunity has gone unrecognized. The cricket menu is "the same as before"—the same surfeit of county mixtures, the inevitable "Test" series, plus one half-hearted innovation in the form of a Test trial disguised as North versus South. It is unimaginative and discouraging.

GAIETY NEEDED

Leaving on one side such practical steps as curtailing the total number of first-class matches, a step which will have to be taken one day, the M.C.C. might surely have arranged one or more games of a light-hearted character, if only as a Coronation experiment. They might, for example, have staged an Over 30 v. Under 30 match at Lord's.

Admittedly the Under 30 XI would have been a little weak, but if the game were Over 32 v. Under 32 what grand sides could be chosen. Here are two as a suggestion.

Over 32.—R. E. S. Wyatt, Sutcliffe, Hammond, Leyland, Mitchell (Yorks), Worthington, Ames, G. O. Allen, Nicholls, Wellard, Goddard.

Under 32.—Barnett, Smith (D.), Gimblett, Hardsuff, Fagg, Todd, McCorkell, R. W. V. Robins, Verity, Voce, K. Farnes.

Another suggestion would be the good old schoolboy division of A-K versus L-Z. The A-K might turn out a young team of Barnett, Hutton, faces covered with mud. They enjoyed it.

There was as usual a lot of fun and amusement in the last event, the Nanling Handicap, ridden by the novices and a bad start saw the downfall of the hot favourite—Tabby Cat. It was not due to the official starter but the pony hesitated to move off when the barrier was released. Mr. Choy Wing-chiu rode a hard race on Tabby Cat who lost to Declasse by half-a-length. In order to have some idea of the state of the going when this race was run, the six furlongs were covered in 1:37.4, the last quarter being 33 seconds.

FOOTBALLERS BACK

Royal Ulster Rifles' Return From Manila

In the charge of Capt. J. B. Jeffreys, the Royal Ulster Rifles' football team, which has been playing a series of matches in Manila on an invitation by the Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation, returned to the Colony yesterday by the President Coolidge.

The team consisted of 15 players and a trainer. The eleven that turned out for the matches in Manila was almost identical to that which won the First Division championship of the Hongkong Football League during the season 1936-37.

Of the eight matches played, they won three, lost three and drew two. The following were the results:

Drew with Santo Tomas 2-2; beat Letran College 4-0; drew with Yeo Athletic Club 4-4; lost to La Salle College 1-4; beat Santo Tomas 6-1; lost to Yeo Athletic Club 3-5; beat La Salle 2-1; and lost to All-Manila 3-6.

All the matches were played at night in flood-light, conditions which were strange to the players.

Hammond, Fagg, Gimblett, Hardsuff, Ames, G. O. Allen, F. R. Brown, Bowes, and A. D. Baxter. Against them one might play R. E. S. Wyatt, Smith (D.), Mitchell (Yorks), Paynter, Todd, Muncer, W. H. Levett, R. W. V. Robins, Verity, Sims, and Voce.

Such games would also enable the authorities to include a few of cricket's personalities now past their best, but whose names are still a draw—such as A. P. F. Chapman, D. R. Jardine, and Larwood—some of the more brilliant performers from club cricket.

TIRED OF TESTS?

Finally, is not the cricket-watching public getting a little tired of the yearly Test visits? Familiarity with inter-country games may, I think will, inevitably breed contempt, and without being discourteous to our New Zealand visitors, I contend it would have been better policy for the M.C.C. to have kept Coronation Year free of visitors from any one Empire country.

Instead they might have run a match or two against Empire cricketers resident in England. It would take an England XI all their time to beat, say, the following team picked entirely from the British Isles: Fairfax, Mudge and Hird (Australians), Constantine, Martindale, and Hedley (W. Indies), Dempster and James (New Zealand), Morkel and Crisp (S. Africa), and Amar Singh (India).

Lastly, the matches would be limited to three days and the players encouraged to go all out for a decision. They might then show up all the dismal cat-anmy which at present converts representative matches into Marathon encounters.

OPEN PAIRS TOURNEY

THREE MATCHES DECIDED ON K.C.C. GREEN

Three matches in the second round of the open pairs championship were played on the K.C.C. green yesterday. Although they led all the way, and at one time by 12, W. L. Walker and S. Randle defeated L. F. Xavier and C. F. Remedios by only one. This was due to the splendid recovery by the losers, who in the last four heads scored 10, including a five and a four. The winners started strongly, and before the fourth head were leading by eight after scoring three fours. They gradually increased their lead and at the 12th were 12 ahead.

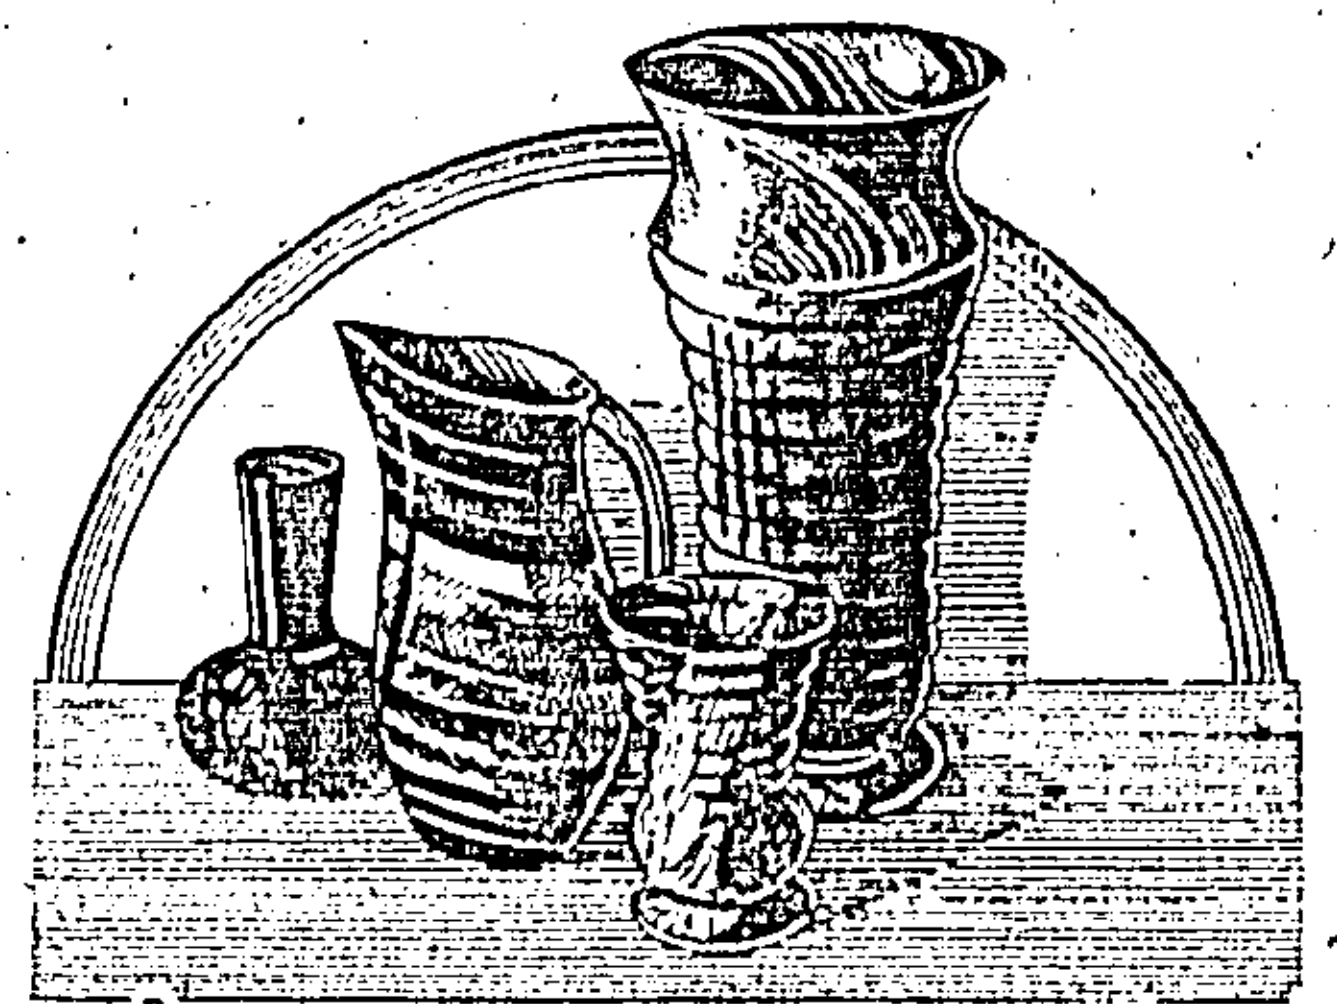

From then onwards, however, their opponents began to reduce the lead, so much so that when the last head was reached they were only two shots behind, the score then being 21-23. In the final head, the losers scored only one, the final score being 23-22.

J. E. Noronha and F. X. M. da Silva defeated T. J. Smith and H. V. Persu by 19, the score being 26-13. With the exception of the first three heads, the winners led all the way. They scored a four and a five, while the highest by the losers was a three.

In a match which had to be finished in semi-darkness, T. Coleman and G. V. Mitchell beat F. X. Soares and C. H. Basto 10 to 13. The match was closely contested, and up to the 16th head the winners led by only one. The losers, however, fell off after that, allowing their opponents to score seven in four of the remaining six heads.

Owing to the death of Mr. C. M. S. Alves' brother, the match between he and H. A. de B. Botelho against G. Perkins and F. Cullen was postponed.

Chats With Reporters At Wedding Breakfast

THEN ASKS FOR PRIVACY AND CONSIDERATION

Chateau Decande, June 3.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor left by motor car on the first stage of their honeymoon at three minutes past six this evening. It is understood they will board the train for Austria at the junction of La Roche Migennes (Yonne Department) at midnight.

The Duchess wore a going-away dress of a dark blue coat and skirt with a printed blue and white flowered blouse.

As the car left the Chateau, waiting crowds saw the Duke looking forward and waving happily. For about three miles along the road from Mont to Tours, mobile guards were stationed on each side at a distance of about 15 yards apart. Police cars and two despatch riders preceded the Duke and Duchess of Windsor's car, and a luggage van and two despatch riders followed.

Many of the villagers emerged from their homes to wave Godspeed to the Duke and Duchess.—Reuter.

Kept To Schedule

Chateau de Candé, June 3. Keeping to their schedule almost to the minute, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor left the Chateau de Candé, scene of their wedding earlier in the day, at 6.03 p.m. They were bound for Austria on their honeymoon.

The bridal pair will travel by automobile for the first stage of their journey, but it is understood they will board a train for Austria at the junction of La Roche-Migennes, Yonne Department, at midnight. The Duchess wore a going-away dress of dark blue, in coat and skirt, with a printed blue and white flowered blouse.

As the car left the Chateau waiting crowds saw his Royal Highness leaning forward and waving happily. For about three miles along the road from Monts to Tours and Poitiers, mobile guards were stationed on each side at a distance of about 15 yards apart. Two police cars and two motor-cycle despatch riders preceded the Duke's car and a luggage van and two despatch riders followed.

Aboard Express

La Roche-Migennes, June 3. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor boarded the Simplon Express for Austria, travelling in a special car, to-night.—United Press. Reuter adds that the Duke, in a grey suit with a white carnation in his buttonhole, but without a hat, left the motorcar with the Duchess at Larochette, and quickly to the carriage reserved for them, in the middle of the Simplon-Orient Express.

He helped the Duchess in and, having attended to their luggage, boarded the train, which immediately pulled out for Austria.

Changes His Mind

Tours, June 3. It was learned here that the Rev. Anderson Jardine had planned to write a press account of the wedding of the Duke of Windsor. However, His Royal Highness told him: "If you write this story you lose my friendship."

The clergyman changed his mind.—United Press.

No Further Action

London, June 3. The Bishop of Fulham, who asked Rev. Anderson Jardine why he had not sought the Church's authority for performing the religious ceremony at the Duke of Windsor's wedding, made it clear to-day that the Vicar would not be punished. There would be no further action, he said.—United Press.

EDWARD ENTITLED TO PEACE

"May It Be Lasting And Complete"

Nation Remembers Its Gratitude

London, June 4.

Controversy raged around the Duke of Windsor's marriage to the very last, exclaims the Daily Telegraph to-day.

With the marriage this controversy should now end, since they enter a happy and useful private life, and they carry the good wishes of all, it adds.

In the strenuous years in which the Duke served his country as his father's right-hand, he deserved well of the British people, and millions remember him with gratitude.

"Now that he is a private citizen he is entitled to private happiness. May it be lasting and complete. We should like the Royal Family to know, too, that because of the intimacy with the people with the feelings of its members," the paper concludes.

The Labour Daily Herald, wishing the Duke and Duchess a long life of married happiness, says: "The profound wish of those who were once his people is that he be allowed the peace and quiet for which he asks. The service which he gave the country for many years need not serve as his first title to this peace; he is a human being and that should be enough."

"Inevitably the thoughts of the British nation dwell on the marriage of the Duke of Windsor," says the Daily Mail. "If those thoughts could be spoken it would be found that they expressed the universal desire that the Duke and his bride find great happiness."—Reuter.

No Statement On Gold

Washington, June 3. A Treasury spokesman said to-day that no statement on the gold situation is being prepared for issue to-day, and that no preparation for any statement to be issued at any time in the future was going on at present.—Reuter.

"IDYLL BLOSSOMS" AT CHATEAU CANDE

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are married, and speeding towards Austria in motor car and express, escorted by police guards. They hope for peace and quiet in an inconspicuous home and have appealed to the press of the world to leave them alone.

Volunteers On Night Manoeuvres

The Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps will take part in further night operations on the night of Saturday, June 26, starting at 2.30 p.m. and lasting until 10 a.m. on Sunday morning. The operations will be similar to those of the combined manoeuvres which were held earlier in the year. On this occasion sections of the Defence Corps will be the attacking force, while others will defend.

Shark Joins Bathers At Night Picnic

While swimming in Tweed Bay during the week-end Miss Didsbury, of Messrs. Gilman and Company, had the exciting experience of being in the water in close proximity to a shark, she believes.

Miss Didsbury saw the typical triangular fin above the water a few yards from her and at the same time spectators on the beach shouted a warning.

The swimmer made for shore and the shark disappeared after cruising about for a few minutes.

It was a moonlight picnic and a number of people insisted later that it was undoubtedly a shark they saw.

IMPERIAL DELEGATES AT DINNER

Wives Are Guests Of Mrs. Chamberlain

London, June 3.

The Dominion Prime Ministers, British and Dominion Cabinet Ministers, and other delegates to the Imperial Conference, and prominent members of the Empire service, were entertained to a banquet by the Government to-night at Grosvenor House.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, England's Prime Minister presided.

Simultaneously the ladies accompanying the members of the Imperial Conference were given a banquet by the Government at the Dorchester Hotel, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Neville Chamberlain.—Reuter.

UNION GUNMEN BESIEGE LOYAL STEEL WORKERS

PICKET LINES REMAIN IMPASSABLE

Youngstown, June 3.

Starvation threatens the employees of the Republic Steel Corporation who still remain at their posts in two of the company's factories near here, the Warren and Niles plants. Both are in Ohio.

Unless they decide to surrender and join the strike, the surrounding picket force will starve them into submission.

The picket lines are impassable, the only method of delivering food to the loyal workers has been by means of aeroplanes. But to-day low-lying clouds and rain prevented aeroplane deliveries.

Moreover snipers' bullets, which have already caused one plane to crash, are making the company disinclined to continue this method of delivery.

The food supply at the Warren factory is sufficient for three or four days, but at Niles supplies are reported to be running low.—Reuter.

Walk-Out Short-Lived

New York, June 3. A Dow Jones report to-day states that 5,000 employees of the Goddard Tyre Company were idle to-day when strikers closed down one plant and part of another of the company's three divisions at Akron, Ohio.

However, within a few hours the situation was normal again, full-time production being resumed.

It was a comparatively minor dispute which caused the workers, in the morning, to sit down and refuse to carry on. It is believed work was recommenced at the request of union leaders, pending negotiations over the difficulties in the factory.—Reuter.

FOUR POWERS PLAN SAFETY FOR NEUTRALS

Berlin, June 3.

It is officially confirmed that discussions will be held between Berlin, London, Paris and Rome with the object of reaching a common understanding on the question of effective guarantees for the safety of vessels participating in the International Control Scheme in Spanish waters.

It is understood that Germany is willing again to co-operate in the naval control and the deliberations of the Non-Intervention Committee if such guarantees are forthcoming.—Reuter.

Italy's Assurance

Rome, June 3. It is authoritatively stated that Italy has given assurances to three prominent Ambassadors that she will not violate the Non-Intervention Convention or take further reprisals against the Spanish Government unless there is a repetition of incidents involving her.—United Press.

British Objective

London, June 3. In a statement in the House of Commons at question-time, Lord Cranborne, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, declared that in the present difficult situation it has been the object of His Majesty's Government to prevent, by all means in their power, the breakdown of the policy of non-intervention in the Spanish struggle, and to avert the very grave situation which would arise if such breakdown resulted in a renewed influx of foreigners into Spain for the purpose of taking part in the struggle.

His Majesty's Government therefore considered the essential aim should be that full international co-operation in the work of the Non-Intervention Committee and the scheme of naval observation of the Spanish coast should be restored with the least possible delay. With this aim in view, His Majesty's Government had communicated last night to the Government concerned proposals which it was hoped might provide an adequate guarantee against the recurrence of incidents such as those which had brought about the existing situation.

Lord Cranborne added: "It is our hope that the proposals in question will enable the policy of non-intervention to be fully resumed by all the Governments concerned. His Majesty's Government attach more importance to such a development since they are anxious to make progress as fast as possible with the question of the withdrawal of foreign combatants in Spain. They regard this matter as urgent and hope that in an atmosphere of renewed international collaboration it may be possible to continue to work for agreement on this subject."—British Wireless.

GEN. MOLA KILLED IN AIR CRASH

Same Fate As Man He Succeeded

Bilbao, June 3.

The death of the Insurgent General Mola, who has been directing the advance on Bilbao, is announced by the Insurgent radio stations at Salamansa and Vitoria. Two pilots and two staff officers died with him. The plane was reconnoitring on the Biscay front when it crashed.—Reuter.

Official Confirmation

Vitoria, June 3. It is officially announced that General Mola was killed in an aeroplane crash near Briviesca, 25 miles north of Burgos.—United Press.

Strange Coincidence

Hendaye, June 3. Insurgent headquarters at San Sebastian announced to-day that General Mola's plane crashed on a mountain-side in a fog, north of Burgos. General Mola's chief-of-staff was killed with him. It is noteworthy that General Mola succeeded General Jose Sanjurjo, following the death of that officer in an aeroplane crash early in the revolution.—United Press.

Six Planes Shot Down

Valencia, June 3. The Government claims that numerous Loyalist aircraft in a battle with 25 insurgent craft, shot six of the enemy to earth in the Central front to-day.—United Press.

OLIVA'S INJURED ARE SAFE

Speeding Towards Manila On Dutch Rescue Vessel

Manila, June 4.

The five badly burned members of the crew of the German freighter Oliva, which caught fire yesterday morning approximately 120 miles out of Manila, are on their way to this port aboard the Dutch steamer Tjikarang. There is a doctor on the ship.

The Tjikarang is expected here at 4 p.m. Meanwhile the Oliva is headed for this port under her own power, the fire under control.—Reuter.

Early this morning some anxiety was felt for the crew of the Oliva and the five injured men, who included the first and fourth officers. No word had been heard from the ship for four hours, said a United Press message.

Meanwhile, the Tjikarang was nearing the scene, and because she was unable to hear radio signals she asked the Oliva or the Fridrum, which was standing by, to fire rockets every quarter of an hour. The Tjikarang located the blackened Oliva shortly after she sent this message.

"IRON LUNG" PATIENT HOPEFUL

"I'm Going To Make It", He Declares

Shanghai, June 4.

Mr. Frederick Snite, Jr., encased in a metal "lung" because of paralysis, which forces him to breathe artificially, was sleeping comfortably shortly after his arrival in Shanghai from Peiping this morning.

His father told the United Press that the young man was not affected by the trip, except for the first fifteen minutes, when he was nervous. However, he recovered his courage in anticipation of a trans-Pacific crossing to his home.

A specially fitted cabin with another "iron lung" awaits Mr. Snite in the President Coolidge. The ship's side will have to be pierced to allow the patient to get aboard, and work started on his quarters when the vessel reaches Hongkong.

A crowd of curious Chinese met the Peiping train, anxious for a view of young Snite and his millionaire father, who charters planes and trains.

Body Found Horribly Mutilated

Believed to have been murdered, the body of an unknown Chinese, between the age of 30 and 40, and dressed in a black cotton singlet and a pair of blue cotton shorts, was found at 7.05 a.m. to-day by troops at a forestry path leading from the main military path at Pak Sha Wan to Lyemun Barracks.

The body, which had not been long lifeless when discovered, bore wounds on the head, throat, chest and abdomen, apparently inflicted with a chopper.

CHINESE LADY'S DEATH

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Tam Hon Tui Yin, step-mother of Mr. W. N. Thomas Tam, well-known barrister, who passed away early this morning at the age of 47. Deceased lived at No. 324, Pokfulam Road. The funeral takes place at 4 p.m. to-day at the Chinese Christian Cemetery.

Glamour Gowns

and they don't cost much, says
Shop Critic

THIS is a glamorous, romantic season so far as evening dresses are concerned. I've not only been doing the round of the shops the last few weeks, but have also been seeing a good slice of night life—just to get a line on what women are really wearing, which isn't always quite the same thing as what the designers want them to wear.

Well, wherever you go you'll see that four-fifths of the women have chosen gallant long coats, right to the ground, with waists, flared skirts and padded or squared shoulders, and as to gowns, whether they are of slipper satin, crisp tulle or lace, organza, crepe or chiffon, they have delicious skirts flaring out from the waist, with narrow self belts or wide and luxurious sashes in contrasting colour, and bodices sometimes very décolleté and sleeveless, and sometimes rather high and with puff sleeves.

At the Opera at Covent Garden the other night, which is the fashionable rendezvous just now, I saw dresses just like those sketched here for you by Angrave.

Only, the glamour gowns at the opera were probably models costing £20 or £30 each, while those in the picture have been adapted from the best models by clever British fashion experts and cost little more than a tenth the price.

Cire lace makes the first gown, the waist encircled with a wide taffeta sash in contrasting colour. This costs only £3 10s.

I think I've mentioned before that there are gowns, not only for "debs," but for women of every age and figure—debutantes in this case merely means inexpensive.

ive, the sort of price that young girls can afford who are on a limited dress allowance, or earning a not very spectacular salary.

Short gloves of suede, in the same colour as the sash, are a very smart touch.

is drawn up high, almost to the neck, with a running string, paper-bag fashion. This is another of the many glamour frocks, priced at £3 10.

AN evening two-piece is one of the most useful things possible for summer wear.

The one sketched on the centre figure and though it is made of a lovely crepe material you will notice that the skirt takes the same flared—even flowing—lines seen in the cire lace and chiffon gowns.

You can get this model in three different colour schemes, all on white grounds, I specially liked the one patterned in sage blue and navy, but it's all a matter of taste, and many people will, no doubt, prefer either the one with Coronation gold and black design or the one patterned in red and black.

One of the most attractive things about this suit is the little coat, lined up all through with taffeta of sage blue, Coronation gold, and red respectively, to go with the different patterns on the crepe.

Taffeta figures largely in everything this season. It makes the slips for lace, chiffon and tulle frocks, it makes sashes and it lines many evening coats.

I always think there's something swagger and grand about the swish and rustle of taffeta slips and linings. This two-piece sounds and looks much more than four guineas' worth; but that actually is its price.

The sleeveless frock has a straight-across décolletage in front and a deep V open to the waist at the back; and a simple stitched self belt.

If your feet ache tonight...

RECENTLY you were given some tips on how to walk to prevent trouble, but a lot of us are in trouble already.

Supposing you have come home at the end of the day with your ankles puffy and swollen and your feet tired and aching, with your shoes feeling many sizes too small.

Take two basins and put them on the floor. Fill one with warm and one with cold water. Put your feet first into the warm and then into the cold half a dozen times. Then massage them with cream or camphor from the toes up. This will send the blood back towards the heart out of the congested veins.

Wring out a towel in the coldest water you can find and wrap both feet in it alternately. Dry them, dust them with talc powder, and then lie down flat and relax, with your feet on a cushion, or even higher. In a quarter of an hour they will look and feel normal again.

USE little pads of animal wool between your toes if they get damp and sore.

It is cheap and easily obtainable from the chemists, as also are foot balms, which can be rubbed in every morning, or lotions containing spirit and witch hazel for anointing at night.

Corns can be prevented by tying on a slice of lemon after the nightly bath. If they are already bad there are corn cures on the market that will give immediate relief to the hardest offender.

INGROWING toenails are a common foot trouble. After the soaking, prise the nail gently away from its embedded seat. Slip underneath it a tiny pad of animal or cotton wool.

If the nail is long enough, cut a small V in the middle. This will relieve the pressure at the sides. Never cut toenails round, like a finger nail. Trim them straight across at right angles to the foot.

Bunions are the price of tight, pointed shoes, which press the tip of the big toe towards the little toe. To ease the aching joint, wear the widest shoes you have. Bathe the feet frequently in warm boracic solution. You can buy rubber supports to put between the big toe and its neighbour which will help to straighten the joint. A pad of animal wool will do this temporarily.

If you have a blister, dab on spirit of Eau de Cologne. Sterilise a pair of scissors and cut away the loose skin. Apply a soothing dressing and cover. The bandage must be fixed firmly in place with sticking plaster to prevent any further friction.

ON THE TENNIS COURT

By Jacqueline
Howard

THIS YEAR'S serious tennis clothes are a cheering example of progression through trial and error.

You remember the very short skirts? Good on some people, usually on the short, slender, compact type of girl with nothing boyish about her. These skirts are back, but in a few instances only. They are cut very carefully to produce a smooth flowing line, and are zipped at the side.

You remember the short tight skirts? Bearable on the kind of girl who has length and breadth but no thickness, but dreadful on the rest. These are right out.

Next came the full shorts, usually worn with a skirt made in the same stuff. These could and can be excellent. They move beautifully; they give all the freedom that anyone can want, and they do not, if properly cut, demand any extreme of thinness or fatness.

The one snag with these is sometimes the human element. There are some people who remain neat in the most exciting circumstances, and apparently without taking any particular trouble about it. There are others who rumple and crease and come undone even when they are sitting quite still. For the essentially neat the separate shorts and skirt is good.

For the innate "rumpler" they are not so good.

This year's feeling in favour of "shorts" does everybody well. The bodice part of them is trim. The shorts part is full, free-moving and becoming. There is no danger that one will part from the other.

Fabrics To Choose

All sorts of stuffs are used to make them in; sharkskin, which is very, very white and smooth and quite proven as yet over its reaction to wear and tear and washing; silk crepes and washing silks; plain and glub linens; flannel; pique and various cottons.

The most immediately attractive are the flannel ones, because the belatedness of any real warmth makes one feel that something woolly will be kinder than anything in silk, cotton or linen. But the crease-resisting club linens are really the most agreeable to the eye.

Most of the bodices button straight up the front, and most of them have small, neat, adaptable collars. Some of them have very short, roomy sleeves and some have none, but the sleeved ones are the most generally becoming.

White is always de rigueur for the serious sportsman on important occasions. Both pastel and brilliant linens, cottons and silks are for ordinary mortals if they prefer them. White or vivid cardigans should be ready to slip on between sets.

The most attractive as well as the most practical of these button up to the base of the throat so that they can double the roles of cardigan and sweater when necessary. Choose them in finest cashmere or in thick knitting.

Tennis top coats are on the short side this year. Some of them are knee length, many end sooner, only a few are long; and although the traditional white blankety effect is still with us, there is a distinct bias towards pinks and blues, corn colour or mustard and greens. Only the longer ones are belted; a few are square and boxy, many have a casual swagger; and occasionally you see a cape instead of a coat.

Matching Jackets

Some sort of wool is the usual fabric for the top layer—hopsack or tweed, flannel, sometimes jersey; but there are also a few swaggers in the same linen as the shorts dress, and quite a lot of little matching jackets which are particularly good for people who refuse to play in sleeves but like to cover semi-burnt arms in between-whiles.

Buckskin boots are pleasing a good many tennis fans. They are very comfortable to wear and they

undoubtedly do give extra support to the ankles.

There is a wide choice of headgear. The new linen cap, slightly jockeyish in effect, is light, protective and becoming. The bandeau has returned, and is wide in front and narrow at the back; and there is a new vizor made in very thin straw instead of in linen or pique.

EX-GANGSTER GOES TO LONDON

Seeking Peace—And Job As Salesman

London, May 6.
EX-CHICAGO gangster Thomas Lawrence Fitzpatrick, forty-five years old, stocky, weary, reached London last night from New York, where a week ago he was deported by the American authorities after finishing ten years' imprisonment in Auburn for a hold-up.

He arrived at Southampton earlier in the day on board the Hamburg-America liner Hansa.

He was met by two English detectives, who questioned him about his criminal career in Canada and the United States.

"What are you going to do over here?" they asked.
"Want a salesman's job," said Gangster Fitzpatrick.
"You'd better," said they.

Fitzpatrick said to me on his arrival in London: "I want a job and I want a bit of peace. I'm disgusted with myself the way they sent me over here. Why, it makes a fellow feel like doing something level for once."

NEW THEM ALL

"Yeh, I knew all the boys—like Bill Ryan, Al Capone, but I never killed a man, never saw one killed, though. I packed a smoke-wagon (gun) and had to fire it sometimes. All the time I was a salesman to the dicks (detectives). And I had the job too, could prove it to any flat (policeman) who questioned me."

Gangster Fitzpatrick told how he started off on his wild life.

His father, he said, was an Irish bricklayer working in Yorkshire near Leeds. Now he is dead, and Gangster Fitzpatrick has not a single relative, does not know one man in the England he had not seen for thirty-five years.

"I ran away from home when I was seven," he said, "and they caught me and put me into an industrial school at Halifax, Yorks. Then I got sent to a religious home in Ottawa, Canada."

"When I was fourteen I ran away to Toronto. Later, I got into a jewellery store and got away with

"It was about '21 when I slipped across the border into the States, and though I got a job as a salesman—furniture, clothing and that—I started knocking round the pool rooms, fell in with gangs. I was three years with the Ryan Gang, and knocked up about $4,000 with them, but I never saved a dime; easy come, easy go it was."

"There was a helluva lot of squabbling about split-ups of the dough, so I cut loose and made for Rochester, New York State. That's where I did the hold-up. I went into a bootshop eight o'clock in the morning, stuck my gun (run) in the assistant's stomach, I made him shell out from the safe, and got away with $300."

COCAINE

"I was all lit up with cocaine, I've taken a cure for it since, got rid of the want of it. It's them young girls want cocaine there nowadays."

"The sentence for the hold-up was twenty years in Auburn Jail, but I came under the old Sage law, under which you get half your sentence remitted for good behaviour; that's why I'm out now."

"While I was in Auburn there were two big riots."

"Now I've lost all my money, about $100, fighting a case to let me get to Canada. But I lost, and I got sent here, where I don't know a soul. This is the first time I've been to London."

No Rush For Arms Loan

BECAUSE of excitement in other parts of the Stock Exchange, little attention was given to the dealings in the Government's new 2½ per cent. Defence Loan issued to the public at 90½. The loan started on the basis of ¼ discount.

A worse week for the flotation of the Government loan could not have been found since 1929 (writes a City correspondent). Even the big banks and other large institutional investors could not get up enthusiasm.

Of the £100,000,000 issued, probably £80,000,000 has had to be taken up by Government departments—the usual practice when an issue made to the public does not go well.

Stop Those Late Hours

—SAY SCHOOL DOCTORS

TWO doctors on the danger of "late nights" to children's physical and mental health:—

Dr. W. M. Ash, school medical officer for Derbyshire, says in his report that the greater number of the children whose health was below normal were found to go to bed very late. He adds:—

"It is lamentable that parents should, by condoning late hours for their children, injure their growing bodies. Malnutrition is very often associated with late hours."

Dr. Fox Linton, Medical Officer of Health for Scarborough, reports that most of the children in the "under-nourished" class are unfit because they do not get enough sleep.

Children of eight need eleven hours in bed, he says, and children of eleven need ten hours.

WOMAN EMBRACED BY RUNAWAY APE

Liverpool, May 6.

MICKEY, powerful 12-stone chimpanzee in the Liverpool Zoo, took it into his head to-day to have a look at the city.

He snapped his chain, got one of his compound, and . . . zoo visitors scattered.

Most of them rushed to the cafe, and locked the doors. Others dived into a circus tent.

Mr. Harold Bailey, 75-year-old ringmaster, tried to keep him out.

Mickey just slipped him, nipped him on the leg as he fell and went on his way.

He met Don Leo, lion-tamer. Don tried to stop him. Result, a badly torn shirt and scratches on the back—for Don.

Then Mickey took to the trees, and so over the wall, to the street.

First person he encountered was Mr. William Kelly, a coal dealer.

Mr. Kelly watched Mickey's approach with misgivings . . . then swung his shovel.

On went the ape, enjoying a full three hours of liberty by:

Entering a convalescent home, sitting at a desk in the office, opening drawers and leaving behind a litter of papers.

Playing with a crowd of children returning from school.

Climbing walls into gardens. Slapping the face of a laundry-maid, who put her head out of a window.

A police constable was eventually responsible for Mickey's "arrest."

"YOUR POLICEMEN—I"

The ape apparently took a fancy to the officer's uniform and placidly followed him back to the Zoo and his sleeping quarters—an iron-barred cage.

Mr. George Wardle, Mickey's keeper, said to-night: "He is so powerful that force is quite useless. We had to let him take his own line and try persuasion."

"If he really lost his temper, he could kill a man with a single blow."

Leap Off Plane At 300 m.p.h.

Paris, May 6.

RAYMOND DELMOTTE, speed ace and long-distance flier, made a parachute leap from his 750-h.p. airplane as it roared at nearly 300 miles an hour above the latest military airport, near Marseilles, to-day on an attempt to right his world air-speed record.

He was slightly hurt in landing. His valuable plane, pilotless, raced drunkenly across the skies, crashed a mile away and was burned out.

For a week Delmotte had been waiting for favourable weather for the attempt. Only a fortnight ago his record of 279.75 m.p.h. for a 621-mile triangular course was beaten by the Italian, Furio Nicolai, with 284.75 m.p.h.

To-day Delmotte took off. At 8.30, just as he was flying into the marked course, watchers saw his machine begin to zig-zag wildly, nose-dive steeply, then—with engine still racing—swoop into a vertical climb. At that moment Delmotte jumped.

M. Risard, chief engineer of the Caudron factory, builder of the machine, said: "In leaving the airfield the machine travelled a little off the track, and a stone was thrown up which damaged an aileron."

"Delmotte, realising that the machine was not properly under control, tried to gain height. Finally the aileron gave way completely."

Johnnie Walker looks into the future

"If good whisky could be had by just making it," said Johnnie Walker, "there would be no need to look into its future. But it is only by maturing for long years in the wood that good whisky develops 'depth' and 'roundness.' Every year thousands and thousands of casks of whisky are laid down for Johnnie Walker—every year thousands and thousands of casks of fully matured whiskies are blended in the perfect harmony of Johnnie Walker. To-day, as always, you are right to ask for Johnnie Walker by name."

It's Warmer To-Day In Hongkong

TEMPERATURE UP TWO DEGREES

It is hotter in Hongkong to-day than yesterday according to the Royal Observatory report issued this morning.

At 10 a.m. the temperature was 82 as compared with 80 yesterday, and humidity registered 88 per cent. as against 84. The barometer recording was 29.78.

Yesterday's maximum temperature was 83, the same as on Wednesday, but the minimum recording of 76 was one degree above that of the previous day.

Rainfall for the 24 hours ending 10 a.m. to-day was 0.01 inch, making a total rainfall since January 1 of 19.94, as against an average of 24.48 inches.

PROBABLY SOME RAIN

The weather forecast issued by the Royal Observatory this morning reads:

Pressure is highest over the sea of Japan, and is relatively low over Indo-China and Siam.
Forecast—East winds, moderate; cloudy generally, probably some rain.

Commended By Court Residents Chase A Snatcher

A bag-snatcher, Chan Fuk, aged 22, appeared before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with the theft of a handbag from Miss G. Engel at Wyndham Street, yesterday afternoon. Defendant said he did not snatch the bag, but merely stole it.

Sub-Inspector W. Arnitt, who prosecuted, said Miss Engel was walking down Wyndham Street with a friend shortly after 5 o'clock when defendant snatched the handbag from under her arm and ran along On Lan Street. Miss Engel shouted when she realised the bag had gone, and Mr. R. Pereira, of Messrs. Grace and Co., responded and gave chase.

Midway through On Lan Street, defendant dropped the handbag, which was wrapped in a Chinese newspaper. He turned down Zeland Street and was followed by Mr. Pereira and about 10 yards from Queen's Road, Mr. J. Cameron, of the Green Island Cement Company, who was attracted by the commotion, intercepted defendant, and handed him over to an Indian constable.

The handbag contained $50 in currency, a cheque book and a draft for $75, making a total of $125, all of which was recovered. Sub-Inspector Arnitt said he would like to draw attention to the spirit in which the two gentlemen, Messrs. Pereira and Cameron, had responded to the cries for assistance, making defendant's arrest possible. If Chan had reached Queen's Road, he could have easily mingled with the after office crowds, and made a getaway.

His Worship thanked Messrs. Pereira and Cameron, and sentenced defendant to four months' hard labour.

NO SPEEDOMETER ON CYCLE FINE IMPOSED ON ARMY MAN

"I am very surprised that the military authorities allow you a motor cycle without a speedometer," said Mr. E. Himsforth, when convicting J. G. Marr at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning of driving motor cycle No. 241 along Nathan and Lalchik Roads at a dangerous speed on May 17.

Traffic Sergeant Scrim said he followed defendant from Public Square Street to the Shamshu bazaar. Defendant was going between 40 and 45 miles per hour. The cycle swerved from side to side on two or three occasions.

Defendant said he had the machine under perfect control and that he had not been going more than 30 m.p.h. The cycle was an Army motor cycle. His Worship said that in view of the fact that defendant had to estimate his speed while the traffic sergeant had a speedometer, he must accept the traffic sergeant's estimate of the speed and convict. Defendant was fined $5.

TECHNICAL MOTOR OFFENCE

KOWLOON RESIDENT CAUTIONED

W. D. O'Grady, residing at No. 1, Armand Buildings, was cautioned when he appeared before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a summons for failing to draw into the left side of the road while depositing passengers on May 15 at 9.20 p.m.

Traffic Sergeant Macvey stated that he noticed the car parked between the Majestic and Po Hing Theatres on the outside edge of the road bordering the road. Another car came along while witness was watching and parked between defendant's car and the pavement.

Defendant stated that at the time the cinema crowd was coming out and he parked in that manner while he went into the World Drug Store in order to move straight off after his purchases. To have put the car in between the trees would have meant backing into the crowd.

When defendant pointed out that people do such things every day, His Worship said although that was so, technically it was an offence.

CASE MAY BE RE-HEARD POLICE SERGEANT'S CONVICTION

Mr. D. McCallum appeared before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning to make an application for a re-hearing of the case in which Lall Khan, P.S. He said the Sergeant was aggrieved in that the prosecution he undertook was a police one and then a cross-summons was taken out against him which was upheld. He was applying for a re-hearing under Section 99 of the Magistrate's Ordinance as there was evidence which had not been heard that was in defendant's favour.

THE CONFUCIAN SOCIETY SALE OF FLOWERS TO-MORROW

In the 28 years of its history, the Hongkong Confucian Society once maintained 30 free schools to give free education to several thousands of poor Chinese children in Hongkong. Recently, on account of financial stringency, the number of the schools was reduced to 17 and the number of students to approximately 2,000. Even so, the Society has to bear a yearly expense in the schools' upkeep of $30,000, which it has secured from public subscriptions as it possesses neither property nor endowment fund. Lately, on account of the general depression, subscriptions have dwindled.

The Committee of the Society is now, on behalf of the 2,000 poor Chinese children, appealing to the generosity of the public by a sale of flowers on Saturday, June 5, and it is hoped that the response will be liberal. The services of the students of 16 self-supported Chinese girls' schools have been obtained to sell flowers in the streets.

SWAN, CULBERTSON & FRITZ LATEST REPORTS

New York, June 3.
S. C. & F. Dow Jones Summary of yesterday's markets:—The market to-day was irregular on the lightest day's trading for two years, although prices were somewhat firm. President Roosevelt's power message, due to the severity of the arrangement on the power industry, was somewhat below anticipation. Utilities firmed on moderate purchases. Steels were steady after an early weakness. Ralls were good. Coppers after early depression, recovered fractional gains. Oils were aided by earnings. Rubbers registered small gains. Bonds were lower, with United States issues irregular. Curb stocks were irregular and quiet.

S. C. & F. Wall Street Journal morning comment: The wheat crop yield is likely to approximate one billion dollars, or almost twice the average for the last six years. Retail automobile sales are slowing down. Brokers expect a quiet market for some time to come. Many traders are awaiting second-quarter reports before taking a long-pull position. The West is still buying farm machinery shares. Ralls are not acting as well as industrials.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: Stocks: Various issues appear to be in considerably better demand and, although activity continues at low levels, the list is giving an impressive indication of underlying firmness. It may be some days before a real upturn is witnessed, but the chances are that we have seen the worst, for the time being at least, and stocks bought at current levels should show worth-while profits before long. Oils, metals, steels and ralls still appear to be amongst the most attractive issues available and we would be inclined to make judicious purchases of Texas Corporation, Phillips Petroleum, Standard Oil of Indiana, Kennecott, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Atchafalpa, Great Northern and Chesapeake Ohio.

Cotton: A prominent private estimate gives the acreage increase at 14 1/2% and the crop condition at 76.4% of normal, compared with an average of 72% over a period of 10 years. It is reported in United Press London advices that the rumors persist there, despite Washington denials, that a tri-partite statement will be issued shortly to effect World stabilisation of the present Gold price.

Wheat: Report of a bad spot in the Spring wheat territory and of dust storms in Canada were out-weighted by increasing winter crop estimates and continued favourable weather. Export demand is small and the market is nervous.

Corn: The continued independent action of the market is probably due to the scarcity of old crop and the length of time which must elapse until the new crop is available.

Rubber: A new strike is reported from Akron, Ohio, which is the centre of the tyre industry. There was some factory buying at to-day's low levels, but no indication of following up advances.

Sugar: The market displayed bet-

THIS YOUNG MAN WANTS A WIFE

HEALTH comes first on that table, and rightly so, because men rate it the most important quality. In nearly every questionnaire answered by men about their idea of an ideal wife they rank health before brains, beauty, or wealth.

Last year the Daily Express printed a questionnaire of this kind, which was answered by 10,000 men, whose replies I helped to analyse.

The ideal woman turned out to be a not very pretty, medium-sized brunette. Physically she is very ordinary. Her clothes are quiet, her tastes simple.

She doesn't make up in public, cries when things go wrong, thinks men are marvellous. I think I'd like some one a bit more sexational.

But the things one ought to want are amiability and attractiveness. These are the two qualities which most men crave.

Only one man in sixteen says sex appeal is among the two most important things he looks for in a wife.

This means that I am one man in sixteen. I should marry the most beautiful girl I could find. Beautiful people aren't usually dumb, you know. Havelock Ellis studied 1,030 British men and women of genius and found that mostly their biographies spoke of great physical beauty.

I REALLY ought to marry a university student, because marriages between university students are more successful than marriages generally, and I should like to think that the two years I spent making false teeth and dissecting flesh had been some use to me.

But I'm not sure that I'd like to marry a university student unless she wasn't like a university student. They're usually so well educated.

And they have a tough job getting married because they talk instead of listening, and because men have a strong tendency to marry women less intelligent than themselves. According to the Daily Express questionnaire only one man in nine wants his wife to be brainy.

ON the whole the best basis for a happy marriage is a common background of work or school. One study of 250 happy families showed that nearly three-fifths had this.

I don't think I should marry outside my own class. It's prohibited in many backward countries, and quite right.

I hope I don't marry without enough money to be as comfortable after marriage as I was before. Dr. Hamilton analysed 100 marriages and found that 54 per cent. of women whose husbands earned more than £1,000 a year were happy, while only 36 per cent. of those whose husbands earned less were as happy. The figures for men indicate that it doesn't make so much difference to them, but it would to me.

My wife wouldn't work. In two large districts in Stafford, with the same health conditions the women of one work and have three times as many stillbirths as the women of the other who don't.

She must have several brothers and sisters, because only children are difficult to get on with.

So I should prefer to marry someone beautiful, young, and well educated, who wanted to do housework and have children, someone medium-sized and middle class, with plenty of money of her own, who wanted to devote her life to my comfort and happiness.

WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, has made a splendid start in office. The first day he appeared in the House of Commons after the retirement of Mr. Stanley Bal-
win, his generous praise for a
colleague, who owed him much
in gratitude, won him esteem.
On Wednesday last he showed,
in his first major decision as Prime Minister, that he possessed no narrow willfulness of nature. He bowed to the complaints of the House and abandoned his carefully planned
National Defence Contribution
scheme, by which he sought to obtain £25,000,000 this year to assist Britain's vital rearmament
programme. He was making
no falsely modest claim when he
said: "My record does not include pig-headed obstinacy."

That is so. And yet he is a
man who wrestled with tenacity
with the financial problems of
his term as Chancellor of the Exchequer — problems which
would have smashed the confidence of many men. That his judgment was sound in this first
important decision, we cannot
doubt; and that he had listened
with an open mind to wise counsel, he would not deny. The fact that his decision has released the market from the vice of
uncertainty, removed the
shackles of doubt from business,
normal expansion of industry,
is sufficient justification. However, he is not a man to move
blindly, even if he faced over-
whelming opposition in the Commons. When he allowed
the graduated tax on growth of
profits to be swept into the dis-
card he had a compensating
means of deriving income from industry in view. He as much
as said so. And instead of the much-paraded tax of £15,000,000
he had been willing to obtain
from the original National Defence Contribution, he will now
get more like £25,000,000, from
the same source but by different
means. That is good business,
particularly when the revised
taxation promised is of the pain-
less variety. . . If any tax is that.
With the armament programme
the British Government has
upon its shoulders, and the im-

a wifeI STUDIED the pictures
of Coronation debu-
tantes in yesterday's Daily Express with particular interest.For as a member of the group
20-22 years old I am contemplating marriage; not with any particular enthusiasm or specific
purpose, but because, judging
from the records, which I have
been going into, I shall have a happier life if I marry early.It should be easy. There are 1,700,000 surplus women in this country, though more men are
born than women. (Reason for
this discrepancy is that more
than women die or go mad, and
are thus ineligible.)As a matter of fact the
chances are that I shan't get married until I am nearly twenty-eight. For the average
man now marries at twenty-
seven, the average girl at
twenty-five, and it's getting
later every year.

"WOMEN especially have
a better chance of making a successful marriage if they do it while they are young; they
get a wider choice of husbands.
If a woman waits until thirty
many of the eligible men in her
circle will be married already.
Maybe better never than late, in
fact."

I wrote that recently and a girl
wrote to me next day:—
"What are you talking about?
Thirty is the ideal age for a
woman to marry. It gives her
time to look around life, and she isn't too old for anything."

All wrong, lady, all wrong for many reasons. Earlier marriages are usually happier, judging from the fact that fewer of
them end in divorce. If you put it off you lose the ability to adapt yourself.

People who marry late suffer
more from mental and nervous
disease. (Incidentally, spinsters
are twice as likely to go nuts as
married women.)

PEOPLE who marry
early live longer,
though that's partly because it's
the healthiest people who do
marry early.

Young mothers' children are healthier. Agricultural labourers marry early because they
soon reach their maximum earning capacity, and they're usually pretty healthy.

And they live longer. What's more personally important than
how long they live is that they
are usually more successful,
which is worth considering for
the sake of support in one's old age.

Well it seems to be a good thing to marry young. If you live in an area where there are a lot of openings for women in industry you probably will marry
young, but have fewer children.

NEXT thing is whom to marry. The popular
idea is that marriage is a lottery
because love is blind.

But the average man doesn't marry in a romantic fit. He knows what's going on when
his youthful experiments are replaced by what is unfortunately often known as "the real thing."

He marries because he has decided to get married, maybe for economic reasons or because he is tired of eating out. Love

mense expenditure it faces in other directions—already expenditure for the year is nearing
the £120,000,000 mark, with revenues at £92,276,168—it is
vital that the man who guides
the affairs of the nation should
be of that calm and far-seeing
type which is not ruffled in
crises; nor by the cries of alarm
of his colleagues. This man, the Prime Minister, deserves, as he
has won already, the confidence
of all.

CONCLUDING article by Heinz Liepmann
on the secret preparations for Gas warfare
which are being made all over the world.DEATH
the SKIESTHE only question which
seriously agitates the
champions of gas warfare is the best way of
delivering the goods.Wind direction is a very serious matter. Meteorological science has
made considerable advances, so
that the general direction of air
currents can be predicted
for a considerable time
ahead. But local winds
remain uncertain.Long past, indeed, are the days when gas attacks
were made by simply liberating the gas from fixed
apparatus and allowing it
to stream down wind on
the enemy in the hope that
it would not be blown back
by a sudden change of wind.
Various attempts have,
therefore, been made to
"wangle" the wind. The
use of huge blowing instruments was at one time contemplated, in the days when poison gas was liberated
from fixed apparatus.Soon, however, came the
turn of gas-shells fired
from heavy guns, with a
range which made the return of the gas-clouds improbable even if the wind
should prove unfavourable.
Next came the vogue of gas-
bombs from aircraft, or
thrown as gas-grenades
from tanks.Plenty of gas-shells were fired during the later years
of the war of 1914-1918, but
the technique of dropping
gas-bombs has only been developed since then, and is
mainly reserved for the next war.

Coming to fuller detail, I
will use the terminology of General Staff officers, who
tell us that there are six
different ways of "smoking"
the enemy with poison gases.

1. Discharge of compressed
gases from fixed apparatus.
This was used at Ypres in the classical gas attack of April 22, 1915. Suitable
gases for this method are
chlorine and phosgene; but
in view of the dangers of a sudden wind shift, it is now much vogue during the next war.

2. Discharge of gas-shells
from mortars. This is suitable
for phosgene and yellow cross,
but also for chlorine and Lewisite. The danger of an unfavourable shift in the wind is obvious.

3. Firing of gas-shells from long-range
heavy guns. Shells containing green
cross, yellow cross, or blue cross are suitable. Such a gas attack is almost independent of the wind, owing to the range of the guns. The missiles
will do their deadly work where they burst, miles away from the battery.

4. Dropping of gas-bombs from aircraft.
The same gases are available as for the other methods, but the bomb is a more accurate method of delivering gas than the shell.

5. Raining of yellow cross or Lewisite
or some similar fluid from aircraft as a fluid not enclosed in bombs.

6. Discharge of smoke or artificial clouds of some sort from aircraft with or without the admixture of poison gas.

No doubt in the next war the second
and third methods will still be used
from time to time, and in all countries,
there are arsenals where gas-shells for
discharge from mortars and heavy guns are being prepared and stored.

On the whole, however, these implements will be reserved for special occasions. The decisive war of the future will be carried on with the aid of
methods four and five, and it is with
the development of these that the gas
experts are chiefly busied.

The sixth method cannot be said
to come within the domain of gas warfare. I mentioned it, however, because it is a very important part of the blossoms on that subconscious foundation.

When he gets to this stage
man sums up his range of acquaintance and goes for the best available. To help me in this process I have adopted the advice
of Paul Popenoe, an American

detail.

cause Dr. Stoltenberg, the gas expert, has specialised upon its use; and because the plan for enveloping
the enemy in a smoky screen is one of the strategic secrets of the Germans.

Speaking generally, little or no attention has been paid to this matter outside Germany.

Let me insist, therefore, upon its importance. Anyone who has had experience of the worst fogs that sometimes prevail in our great cities, and especially in London, must be aware that these quasi-natural fogs may reach an intensity making it practically impossible to get about, whether on foot or by vehicular traffic of any sort.

Now it is certainly conceivable that a hostile army could be enveloped in a cloud of smoke which would preclude any possibility of its advancing to the attack.

I know that the Germans have carried out secret smoke-tests in various parts of the country. Their expert adviser was Dr. Stoltenberg, and two sections of this worthy's pamphlet discussed the smoke problem.

As regards fog and smoke,
we have to distinguish between the direct discharge of a cloud from aircraft and the dropping of bombs which will liberate fog or smoke when they strike the ground.

As regards the discharge of fog or smoke from aircraft, we have to remember that the speed of aircraft is very great, ranging from 100 to 160 feet per second, so that the volume of smoke or
fog must be emitted in large quantities
and with great rapidity.

This can be managed, either by the use of containers with very large orifices, through which the substance is simply poured out, or by the ejection of the usual fluid smoke-producer (the chloro-sulphonic acid used in aktyl) from the containers in which it is stored under pressure.

American chemists believe that
poison gases can be stored in prime
condition for as long as ten years.
Especially interesting are the bombs to which reference was made at the fourteenth conference of the International Red Cross held at The Hague, in the
year 1928.

These are bombs with a retarded
detonator. They do not explode until many minutes (four to thirty-six) after they strike.

Another remarkable fruit of the in-
ventiveness of the human spirit is the
poison gas aeroplane which has no
aviator on board, but is directed by wireless. This is, indeed, a two-edged
weapon, for the enemy, by interfering
with the wireless direction, might turn
the plane to the right-about, and
deliver the goods on the heads of the senders.

Finally, the eminent gas authority,
reports as follows concerning the "most
modern" methods of chemical warfare:
The second stage of an aero-chemical
attack will be the raining down of fluid
poisons stored, under pressure or not,
in containers carried by aircraft.

When pressure is wanted, the containers used by the Americans have a
charge of highly compressed air or car-
bonic acid which will atomise the
poison gas as it emerges—or spray it, if
that is required and a different pressure
is used.

In practical working, the height from
which the spray or vapour is delivered
must be accurately adjusted to circumstances.

Experiments of this nature have
been carried out in all countries. It
has been found that mustard gas,
which is really a fluid from which an
extremely heavy vapour may be prepared, can be most effectively used by
atomising the fluid, this being allowed to emerge through a small aperture in the container while the aircraft that carries it is flying very fast.

Lewisite proves even more effective
when sprayed in this way. Since it is far more powerful than mustard gas,
three tiny drops often prove fatal.
Aircraft can easily scatter hundreds of
tons of this deadly substance over
army camps or towns.

Every one of the larger countries has
thousands of aeroplanes which may
readily be adapted to the showering
down of such murderous rains.

Gas is a mechanical instrument.
Soldiers must see to its use, and
soldiers cost a lot of money.

Our army commanders have been asking themselves whether it is not possible to find soldiers of another
kind, who will carry on warfare un-
supervised, will multiply themselves
while engaged in their deadly work, so
that tremendous and increasing effects
can be secured at a trifling initial cost.

With that end in view, microbes,
pathogenic microbes, are to be
pressed into the service of man—
for man's destruction.

Correspondence between the German Reichswehr Ministry and
a leading German aviation society
has shown that experts proposed
to use a harmless microbe as the subject of an experiment in order
to show how micro-organisms
rained down from aircraft would
react to meteorological, bacterio-
logical and chemical conditions.

The unprecedented character of
these experiments, entirely new in
the history of civilised mankind,
was that they were carried out, by Germans,
not in the German capital,
but in London and
in Paris. They were made by agents in the vicinity of the ventilating shafts of the London
tube railways and of the

Paris Metro. One letter in the
correspondence gives detailed accounts of the experiments in Paris.

It was assumed that, in the event
of a German air-raid, a large proportion of the population of Paris
would take refuge in the Metro.
This underground railway has
been, to some extent, designed to
resist an enemy air-attack, and the shaft shafts by which it is ventilated have been so constructed
that the air can be kept reasonably
pure.

The agents stationed themselves
close to the inlets of these shafts, and
liberated certain quantities of the aforesaid micro-organisms, which,
of course, were promptly sucked into the
ventilators.

Down below, on the platforms, were
other agents with complicated apparatus able to register how many of the
liberated organisms found their way
into the underground air.

There is a similar report concerning
the experiments in London.

ANGLER'S
WIFE

MUCH sympathy goes to the
golf widow and the bridge
widower but no one seems to consider the lot of the angler's
wife.

While the world and his wife
are enjoying a civilised holiday
among civilised people, the an-
gler and his wife make tracks
for some unfrequented "back o'
beyond" where there is alleged
to be excellent fishing, but apparently little else.

The wife does not have to accompany the fisher, but there is
a sense of injury and a strained
feeling in the air should she suggest going off on her own. Her husband likes her to be there in
the evenings when he is too
tired to do anything but sit
and smoke. Occasionally he will
recount the fine rises he had
throughout the day, and tell of
the salmon he almost landed but
didn't.

The angler's patience is colos-
sal. The man who cannot wait
ten minutes while his wife
dashes into a store in town to
buy a hat can stand for hours
on the river's bank—often with
no success. Time is nothing to the angler.

If his wife should accompany him to the river, she hardly
dare move an eyelid for fear she
should frighten away the fish.
Woe betide her if she should
happen to speak at the psychological moment when a fish is
about to rise!

Fortunately, however, even a
keen fisher must eat, and the interval for a picnic lunch or tea
relieves the situation somewhat.
The angler's wife, who always
tries to make a virtue of necessity, begins to think that even
the "back o' beyond" has its
points.

The village inn, to which they
return each evening pleasantly
tired, may not be very modern.
The water may be more often
cold than hot, the mattresses
may be somewhat hard and un-
yielding, but at least there is
sure to be a good fire and a decent meal.

The local store may be limited in its resources, its window-

IMPROVING FRACTURE TREATMENT

Unified Control Recommended

London, June 3. Recommendations for improving facilities for the treatment of fracture cases are contained in the interim report of the committee appointed over a year ago to inquire into the arrangements at present existing for restoring the working capacity of persons injured in accidents, and to report upon any improvements that might be expedient.

The committee dealt first with fractures, and the report records that the number of fracture cases treated annually in hospitals of England, Wales and Scotland is well over 200,000. In 59 out of 825 hospitals from which the committee received information, there are special fracture departments under single control, ensuring continuity of treatment until the patient is restored to work, and the committee emphasises the importance of this unified control and of the constant supervision and direction of all cases by visiting surgeons specially appointed.

The committee concludes that the provision of a network of fracture services, covering the whole country, will call for careful planning. Co-operation of local authorities, hospitals, the medical profession, and of employers and workers organisations, will be necessary and in some areas is already being secured.—British Wireless.

LETTER TO EDITOR

The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph, Sir.—With reference to the donations which you and the Kung Shing Daily News are so public spiritedly collecting for the families of the Chinese victims of the Dojima Mars disaster, may I ask whether the owners of the ill-fated launch have given any compensation to these families?

I ask this because I know of several persons who would like to contribute towards your fund but are waiting to know what compensation the owners will make to the Chinese families concerned before sending in their mite.

I think I am voicing the opinions of many that some compensation will be made to the relatives of the deceased Chinese as is, I understand, being done in the case of the relatives of deceased Japanese.

If not, is not this terrible disaster a pointed apology for the early institution of Workmen's Compensation in Hongkong as it is in England and Japan?

UNDERDOG. We understand the employers of the unfortunate crew of the Dojima Maru has assisted the widows and children. The Hongkong Japanese Community has also made a generous contribution towards their relief.—Ed.

INTRUDER SURPRISED; ESCAPES

An unusual and alarming experience befell Mr. C. B. Matthews, of the Takuo Sugar Refinery, at his house, No. 6 Quarry Point, about 4 a.m. yesterday.

When he was sleeping in his bedroom he was suddenly awakened by the movement of an intruder, but just as he was about to tackle him the man escaped by jumping through the kitchen window.

It was later found that a ten-dollar bill was missing.

FLIERS REACH PARAMARIBO

Her earlier hops were from Miami to San Juan, Puerto Rico, and then to Caripito.—Reuter.

IN FINE SPIRITS

Shanghai, June 4. Successfully completing the first stage of a 10,000-mile journey unique in the annals of medicine, Mr. Frederick Smit, Jr., arrived in his special train at the North Station at 3.15 a.m. to-day. He was conveyed to the General Hospital by ambulance, escorted by motor-cycle police.

The patient was well and cheerful, having borne the trip well, though he was somewhat excited over the feeling of motion after 14 months' confinement in a hospital bed. His journey from Peking went without a hitch and his artificial respirator worked perfectly.—Reuter.

NEW YORK SUSPENDS BRADDOCK

For Failure To Meet Max Schmeling

New York, June 3.

For failing to appear to weigh-in for to-night's scheduled fight against Max Schmeling, German heavy-weight and ex-world's champion, Jim Braddock was fined $1,000 and suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Braddock's world title was not taken from him, however.

The Commission also stated it would suspend any boxer who fights Braddock before the champion fulfils his engagement with Schmeling at Madison Square Gardens. This threat is obviously aimed at Joe Louis, the Detroit negro whom Schmeling whipped, but who is slated to fight Braddock at Chicago on June 22.

Braddock's manager thought Louis would make a better drawing-card than Schmeling, declaring that anti-German feeling, especially in New York, would have made a fight with Schmeling a financial failure.—Reuter.

SUSPENSION NOT RECOGNISED

Chicago, June 3.

The State Boxing Commission chairman, Mr. Joe Triner, declared Illinois would not recognise the suspension by New York of Jim Braddock. He would fight Louis in Chicago on June 22, and it will be for the heavyweight title, the chairman added.—United Press.

CONCERT IN AID OF CHARITY

Prominent Artists Lend Services

New York, June 3.

To-morrow evening at 9 o'clock there will be a concert in aid of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at the Club de Recreio, Kowloon. It will consist mainly of operatic music, both vocal and instrumental. It has been organised by Prof. E. Gualdi, with the help of his Choral and several distinguished soloists.

Miss N. Hyndman, Mrs. S. Choy, Miss C. Pang, Miss Prue Lewis, Mr. G. D'Aquino and Mr. Harry Talbot will kindly agree to give their services, and will render various numbers from "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," "Il Trovatore" and other operas.

The Choral Group, whose members have earned for themselves a unique reputation among local musical bodies, will include in their programme selections from "Mascagni's 'Cavalleria Rusticana,'" Bellini's "Casta Diva," "Norma," and Verdi's "Forz del Destino," as well as folk songs in English and Italian.

The object for which the concert is being given needs no introduction to the people of Hongkong, who are well known as the oldest of local charities, that does universal good among the poor. Tickets may be had at Anderson's and Tsang Fook Music Stores and at the doors of the Club de Recreio to-morrow night.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. Luiz Gonzaga Rozario, shipping clerk, of 10 Victory Avenue, Homuntin, and Mrs. Haydee Maria Luz Barros, widow, residing at 20 Granville Road.

GUARDING NATION'S WEALTH

For Good Of People; Roosevelt Plan

Washington, June 3.

The establishment of several regional authorities to undertake a comprehensive programme for flood, drought and dust storm prevention and soil conservation has been recommended by President Roosevelt in a message to Congress.

The regional authorities will also administer hydro-electric projects undertaken as part of the Multiple Purpose Watershed Developments.

"The Duchess and I wish to thank all those who so kindly sent presents and good wishes. I shall never forget their friendly messages. After the trying time we have been through we now look forward to a happy and useful private life and that measure of peace we hope will be granted us."

Receive Reporters

A flood of more than 2,000 telegrams came into the Chateau during the morning.

At 2.45 p.m. the Duke and Duchess received reporters en masse. "We are both exceedingly happy, and both delighted to receive you all here," said His Royal Highness.

The reporters were then presented singly, and smiling, the Duke regretted that the size of the Chateau did not permit of more guests.

At the wedding breakfast the Duke was laughingly happy and mixed with his guests and the privileged newsmen present.

It is generally thought that the Duke and Duchess will live permanently in Central Europe.—United Press.

Good Wishes From Home

London, June 3.

The Duke of Windsor's wedding has evoked warm and widespread good wishes in many quarters, says the Evening Standard in an editorial to-day.

The leader continues to point out that a series of humiliations have been inflicted upon the Duke during recent weeks. One was the ruling whereby his family and friends were prevented from attending the wedding, another was the churches' boycott. But there is little ill-will towards the Duke of Windsor in the nation as a whole and these actions, if the purpose was to alienate public sympathy from him, have defeated that purpose.

We believe, continued the editorial, that people will prefer to think with charity of his marriage, and remember with gratitude his immense past services to his country.

The News-Chronicle says there must travel across the Channel from all men and women of goodwill heartfelt good wishes for a long and happy married life to this man upon whom "the matchless blessing" of marriage, hitherto denied him, is now to be bestowed. May he find his decision endorsed by the years, it adds.—Reuter.

Duke's Message

Monte, June 3.

Mrs. Herman Rogers delivered to the press a message left by the Duke of Windsor after his departure for Austria with his bride.

"The Duke realises that any atmosphere of secrecy is unsatisfactory," she said. "He will always be prepared to supply any news of importance concerning the Duchess and himself. At the same time, the Duke and Duchess, while fully understanding the difficulty, want this day to appeal to the press of the world to give them that measure of consideration and privacy which they feel is now their due."—United Press.

Vicar Is Questioned

Darlington, June 3.

An emergency meeting of the Parochial Council of St. Paul's Church to-day decided to ask the Rev. Anderson Jardine for an explanation as to why he did not conform the Church for authority to perform the religious ceremony at the wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.—United Press.

Duke's Wedding

Monte, June 3.

The Duke of Windsor, formerly King Edward VIII of Great Britain, was married to Miss Wallis Warfield, formerly Mrs. Ernest Simpson, to-day at the Chateau de Candé, the home of their American host, Mr. Herman Rogers. There were two ceremonies, a civil one by the Mayor of Monte, Dr. Mercier, and an Anglican service by the Rev. Anderson Jardine.

The Duke of Windsor wore a black morning coat with a very dark yellow waistcoat, double collar, grey check tie and a white carnation in his buttonhole.

The civil ceremony began at 11.35 a.m. with Dr. Mercier reading the names of the parties and the Duke of Windsor's titles. The Mayor then called on the witnesses—Major Metcalfe for the Duke and Mr. Herman Rogers for Miss Warfield—and read and others. As the steeds passed the Stewards' stand, Discovery Bay slipped and unsent her jockey. Luckily Mr. Gregory was riding in the rear of the field and he got up as if nothing had happened. However the visibility, owing to the heavy rain, was very poor when the runners were rounding the bend, but it appeared, though I might be wrong, that Dick Turpin was well in the front. The manner in which Dick Turpin won this race by six lengths showed that he had no objection to a heavy course. Twilight Star, who was second, paid well $13.60 for a place, but Rosily after a sequence of seven unplaced outings finished a good third.

The best race was seen in the Peiho Handicap for "D" class China ponies over six furlongs and incidentally this was the first leg of the daily double event. Plain View was a strong fancy, but the nag lost the race in the last few strides to Racing Boy by a short head.

At the release of the barrier, Araxy made the running followed by Shipmaster. It could be seen from the start that the heavy course was not welcomed by these two chargers for Messrs. Proulx and Black had great difficulty in getting the ponies to move. Long before entering the stretch Araxy and Shipmaster threw in their sponge. At the distance of the National Anthem was leading but for a short while only. He could not save off the spirited challenge by Racing Boy and Plain View. The former just managed to clinch the issue and in view of the fact that Racing Boy was carrying top-weight, it was certainly a grand performance. The jockey Mr. S. C. Wang, riding a hard race. The great veteran paid $90.00 for a win this being the biggest of the meeting.

There was a grim battle between Daylight Eve, Valorous and Gold Coin for the minor position in the frame and the decision went to Daylight Eve by a short head. There were 12 starters out of 15 entries and when the riders returned to the jockey's room, some of them had their

CORONATION MENU

"AS BEFORE"

(By Sidney Rogerson)

The M.C.C. have missed a great opportunity. Coronation year presented a wonderful chance to attempt to infuse into cricket some of the festive spirit which is evident elsewhere. It was an opportunity to try something new, to restore to English cricket some of its old good humour and its old good nature.

But the opportunity has gone unrecognized. The cricket menu is "the same as before"—the same surfeit of county mixtures, the inevitable "Test" series, plus one half-hearted innovation in the form of a Test trial disguised as North versus South. It is unimaginative and discouraging.

GAITY NEEDED

Leaving on one side such practical steps as curtailing the total number of first-class matches, a step which will have to be taken one day, the M.C.C. might surely have arranged one or more games of a light-hearted character, if only as a Coronation experiment. They might for example have staged an Over 30 v. Under 30 match at Lord's.

Admittedly the Under 30 XI. would have been a trifle weak, but if the game were Over 32 v. Under 32 what grand sides could be chosen. Here are two as a suggestion.

Over 32.—R. E. S. Wyatt, Sutcliffe, Hammond, Leyland, Mitchell (York), Worthington, Ames, G. O. Allen, Nicholls, Wellard, Goddard.

Under 32.—Barnett, Smith (D.), Gimblett, Hardstaff, Fagg, Todd, McCorkell, R. W. V. Robins, Verity, Voce, K. Farnes.

Another suggestion would be the good old schoolboy division of A-K versus L-Z. The A-K might turn out a young team of Barnett, Hutton,

faces covered with mud. They enjoyed it.

There was as usual a lot of fun and amusement in the last event, the Nanling Handicap, ridden by the novices and a bad start saw the downfall of the hot favourite—Tabby Cat. It was not due to the official starter but the pony hesitated to move off when the barrier was released. Mr. Choy Wing-chiu rode a hard race on Tabby Cat who lost to Declasse by half-a-length. In order to have some idea of the state of the going when this race was run, the six furlongs were covered in 1:37 1/4, the last quarter being 33 seconds.

FOOTBALLERS BACK

Royal Ulster Rifles' Return From Manila

In the charge of Capt. J. B. Jeffrey, the Royal Ulster Rifles' football team, which has been playing a series of matches in Manila on an invitation by the Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation, returned to the Colony yesterday by the President Coolidge.

The team consisted of 15 players and a trainer. The eleven that turned out for the matches in Manila was almost identical to that which won the First Division championship of the Hongkong Football League during the season 1936-37.

Of the eight matches played, they won three, lost three and drew two. The following were the results:

Drew with Santo Tomas 2-2; beat Letran College 4-0; drew with Yco Athletic Club 4-4; drew to La Salle College 1-1; beat Santo Tomas 6-1; lost to Yco Athletic Club 3-5; beat La Salle 2-1; and lost to All-Manila 3-6.

All the matches were played at night in flood-light, conditions which were strange to the players.

Hammond, Fagg, Gimblett, Hardstaff, Ames, G. O. Allen, F. R. Brown, Bowes, and A. B. D. Brown. Against them one might play R. E. S. Wyatt, Smith (D.), Mitchell (Yorkshire), Paynter, Todd, Munce, W. H. Levitt, R. W. V. Robins, Verity, Sims, and Voce.

Such games would also enable the authorities to include a few of cricket's personalities now past their best, but whose names are still a draw—such as A. P. F. Chapman, D. R. Jardine, and Larwood—or some of the more brilliant performers from club cricket.

TIRED OF TESTS?

Finally, is not the cricket-watching public getting a little tired of the yearly Test visits? Familiarity with intercountry games may, and I think will, inevitably breed contempt, and without being discourteous to our New Zealand visitors, I contend it would have been better policy for the M.C.C. to have kept Coronation Year free of visitors from any one Empire country.

Instead they might have run a match or two against Empire cricketers resident in England. It would take an England XI. all their time to beat, say, the following team picked entirely from the British Isles: Fairfax, Mudge and Hird (Australia), Constantine, Martindale, and Hedley (W. Indies), Dempster and James (New Zealand), Morkel and Crisp (S. Africa), and Amar Singh (India).

Lastly, the matches would be limited to three days and the players encouraged to go all out for a decision. They might then show up all the dismal ca-can which at present converts representative matches into Marathon encounters.

OPEN PAIRS TOURNNEY

THREE MATCHES DECIDED ON K.C.C. GREEN

Three matches in the second round of the open pairs championship were played on the K.C.C. green yesterday. Although they led all the way, and at one time by 12, W. L. Walker and S. Randle defeated L. F. Xavier and C. F. Remedios by only one. This was due to the splendid recovery by the losers, who in the last four hands scored 10 including a five and a four. The winners started strongly, and before the fourth hand were leading by eight after scoring three fours. They gradually increased their lead and at the 12th were 12 ahead.

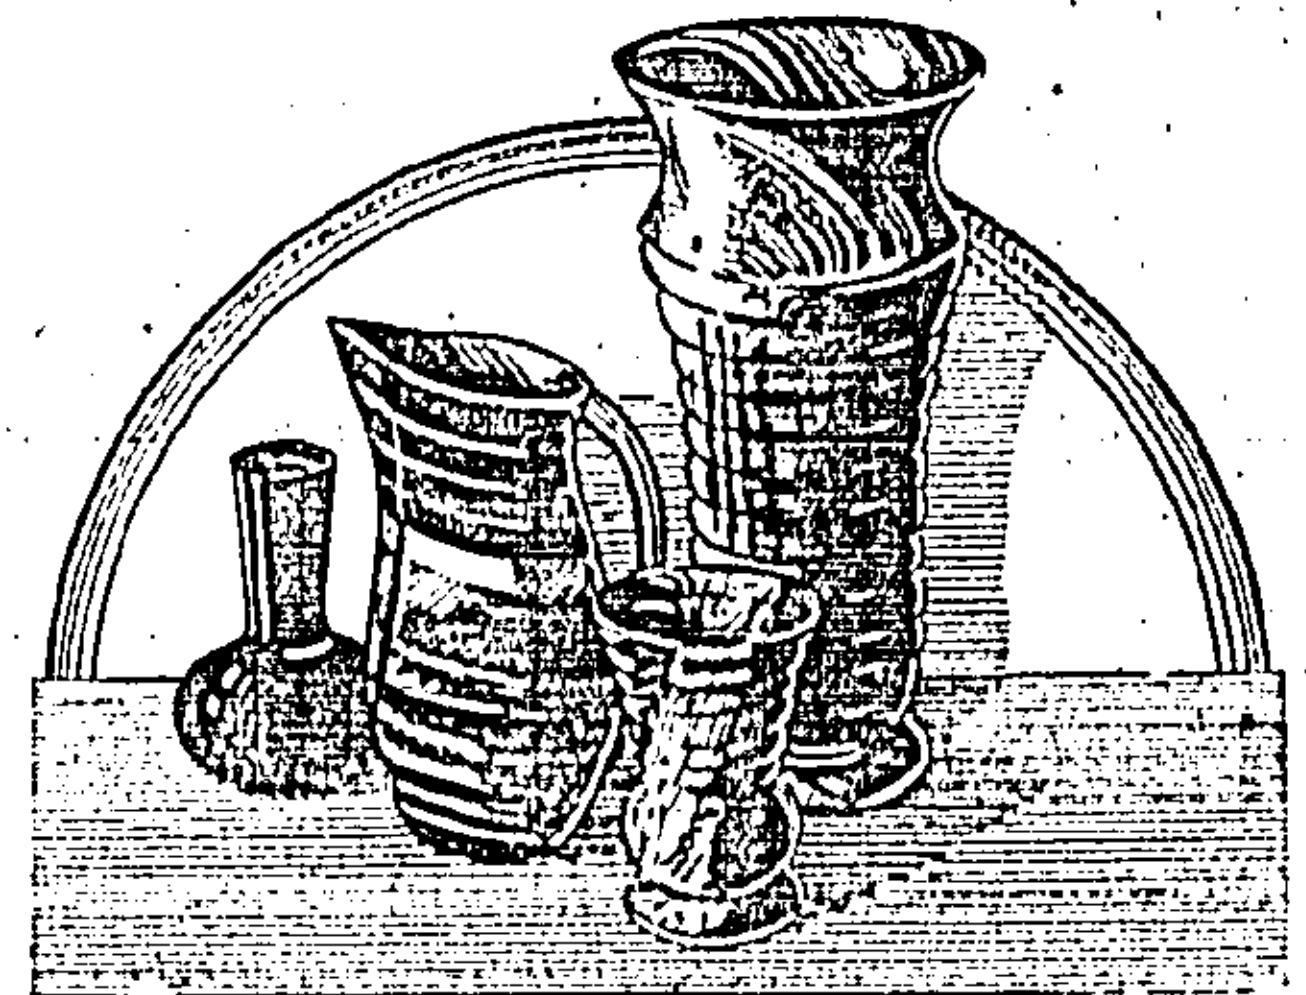

From then onwards, however, their opponents began to reduce the lead, so much so that when the last hand was reached they were only two shots behind, the score then being 21-23. In the final hand, the losers scored only one; the final score being 23-22.

E. Noronha and F. X. M. da Silva defeated T. J. Smith and H. V. Pearce by 13, the score being 26-13. With the exception of the first three hands, the winners led all the way. They scored a four and a five, while the highest by the losers was a three.

In a match which had to be finished in semi-darkness, T. Coleman and G. N. Mitchell beat F. X. Soares and C. H. Basto 19 to 13. The match was closely contested, and up to the 15th hand the winners led by only one. The losers, however, fell off after that, allowing their opponents to score seven in four of the remaining six hands.

Owing to the death of Mr. C. M. S. Alves' brother, the match between H. A. de B. Botelho against G. Perkins and F. Cullen was postponed.

BOSTON DEFEATS PIRATES

Rain Washes Out All
Other Fixtures

New York, June 3. Pittsburgh lost some of its lead in the National League to-day when Boston held the Pirates scoreless, hitting seven hits, but keeping them well scattered. Berger homered for the Pirates on two occasions, and Boston's nine hits netted six runs.

The St. Louis-Brooklyn, Chicago-New York, and Cincinnati-Philadelphia games were cancelled, owing to rain.

In the American League the leading New York Yankees were trimmed by Cleveland, six to two, though each had eleven hits.

Chicago, playing at Boston, won handsily, scoring eleven runs on ten hits. Red and Bonifay hitting homers. Boston scored four on six hits, Higgins contributing a circuit drive.

Washington beat Detroit, five to four, with nine hits to ten. The score was surprising in that Greenberg hit a home run for the Tigers, but on empty bases.

The Philadelphia-St. Louis game was called on account of rain. —Reuter.

Razor Blade Used Pocket Slit By Thief

Slitting a woman's jacket pocket in an attempt to commit a theft, Cheung Chung, aged 36, unemployed, was unsuccessful. He was brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with the larceny of $3.50, a gold finger ring and a gold metal leaf from Siu Sam, aged 20, married woman, at the Yaumati Ferry Wharf yesterday.

Detective-Sergeant D. Davies stated that the woman had just disembarked from a ferry when she felt something cutting her skin. She immediately felt her pocket and saw it had been slit. On turning round, she saw defendant quite close, and called out. A detective who was nearby came on the scene and arrested defendant.

Defendant was searched and the container for a safety razor blade was found in his pocket. He stated that he had taken the blade away. The property he had taken from the woman was not recovered, and defendant himself said he had thrown it into the harbour.

Mr. C. Y. Kwan, who appeared for defendant, said his client admitted the offence, but not the facts as outlined by the prosecution. In fact, he claimed that he had not successfully extracted complainant's property.

Sub-Inspector W. Armitage asked that a serious view of the offence be taken, as defendant had used a Razor blade. Crimes of that type were increasing, partly owing to the recent influx of visitors during the Coronation celebrations.

Defendant was sentenced to five months' hard labour.

One Death In 42 Accidents In H.K. Week

Official Traffic
Report Issued

One fatality in 42 accidents during the week ending May 29 is revealed in the official report made by the Hongkong Traffic Inspector and issued to-day.

Motor cars, lorries, buses, motor cycles, bicycles, trams and rickshaws were involved in these 42 accidents, which entailed injuries to 20 people, 11 of whom were admitted to hospital.

The one fatality was a Chinese, aged 22, who died as a result of injuries received whilst alighting from a moving tram.

Of the injured, nine were pedestrians, who were either walking or running across the road when knocked down.

Four tram passengers and one bus passenger were injured because they alighted from the vehicles as they were moving. Injuries were sustained by passengers who fell from moving motor lorries.

Of the 42 accidents, 15 were collisions between vehicles, twelve were collisions between vehicles and pedestrians and 15 were due to other causes.

57 VEHICLES INVOLVED

The report shows that 19 private motor cars were involved, and that the number of other vehicles which figures in these various accidents was as follows: motor lorries (14), public motor cars (3), motor buses (5), motor cycles (4), trams (5), bicycles (3) and rickshaws (4).

An analysis of how these 42 people were injured, serves, among other things, to show that pedestrians continue to be careless in their use of the road.

Six were injured because they ran across the road, and four of them received hospital treatment. Three were hurt because they walked carelessly. Another stupid habit which produced unfortunate results during that week, was the alighting from moving public vehicles. Seven people were injured, with five sent to hospital, because they ignored reasonable precautions.

Anglo-U.S. Progress On Trade Pact

London, June 3. It is learned that British and American Governments have exchanged lists of products, among which they are anxious for tariff concessions.

Such concessions might form the basis of an Anglo-American trade treaty, it is suggested. It is reported that most of the American goods are agricultural, and that the British include textiles.

It is expected a pact will be openly discussed at the Imperial conference. —United Press.

CORONATION CROWDS WERE WELL-BEHAVED

London, June 3. There was an echo in the House of Commons to-day of Coronation Day, and the time when crowds of unprecedented dimensions thronged London streets till late at night, and on the following night on which the West End was given over to jubilation and millions filled the vehicle-empty streets to see the illuminations and decorations.

Mr. Samuel Hoare, new Home Secretary, told the House that the number of persons charged with drunkenness of all kinds in the whole metropolitan area during Coronation Week was only 492. —British Wire- less.

HUGE GOLD OFFERINGS IN LONDON

Equalisation Fund
Makes Purchase

London, June 3. The largest single day's offering in the history of the gold bullion market was a total of £12,000,000—was sold here to-day.

It is persistently reported that the authorities of three nations will issue a statement concerning the gold price, possibly next week. It is believed the price will be stabilised.

The source of the gold offerings is not disclosed, but it is believed to come from foreign holdings. It is noteworthy that to-day's sales brought offerings in official markets for the past few days to $42,340,000. It is believed Thursday's entire offering was purchased by the British Equalisation Fund. Another shipment of £10,000,000 of Russian gold arrived Wednesday. —United Press.

GOLD STANDARD QUERY

London, June 3. In the House of Commons this afternoon, the Chancellor of the Exchequer was asked to give the same assurance as was given by his predecessor that the country would not return to the gold standard system until he was satisfied that the causes which brought about the downfall of the gold standard in 1931 were removed and not likely to recur.

Sir John Simon replied that the conditions necessary before a return to the gold standard would be possible, had been clearly indicated in a previous declaration, which continued to represent the policy of the Government on that subject. —British Wire- less.

CHINA'S DESIRE UNKNOWN

London, June 3. Asked in the House of Commons by a member who averred that mischievous was being caused to commerce by the increasing surplus of gold production, pending its absorption by the automatic expansion of international trade, whether he would confer with the Government of the United States with the object of offering jointly to help the Chinese Government to establish a gold standard and currency, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied that the Chinese Government had not expressed any desire to establish a gold standard, and in the circumstances, the suggestion in the question did not appear to be practicable. —British Wire- less.

EMPIRE TALKS CONTINUING

London, June 3. The principal delegates to the Imperial Conference held a further meeting in the Cabinet room at No. 10 Downing Street to-day.

Mr. Chamberlain, who was in the chair, referred to the deep concern with which he, and he felt sure, all delegates had heard the news of Sir Robert Borden's serious illness, and Mr. Mackenzie King expressed his appreciation of what had been said.

Mr. Eden gave an account of the most recent developments of the Spanish situation and went on to deal with various points which were raised during earlier discussions on foreign policy.

After some interchange of views, the meeting adjourned until to-morrow morning. —British Wire- less.
